TRANSLATOR'S INTRODUCTION

In the Name of Allah, Most Gracious, Most Merciful

All Praise belongs to Allah, Who has sent down the Qur'an to His Beloved Messenger as an Arabic Qur'an in order that we may understand. Peace and Blessings on our Master, Muhammad, the most eloquent articulator of the letter ض, his family, his companions and those who succeeded them until the Day of Reckoning.

It is with great pleasure that I offer this annotated translation of the famous Ājurrūmiyyah to my Muslim brothers and sisters with the hope that it will contribute to a better understanding of the Arabic language and hence a better understanding of the Holy Qur'an and the Prophetic Sunnah as well as the vast Islamic heritage that the best minds of the Muslim world have left behind.

About the Ājurrūmiyyah and its author

Of all the short texts and treatises that have been written on Arabic Grammar there is none that has enjoyed as much popularity around the world than the Ājurrūmiyyah. It has been recorded from the author, Abū Abdillāh, Muḥammad ibn Muḥammad ibn Dāwūd al-Ṣanhājī, who wrote this text in Makkah whilst facing the Holy Ka'bah that after he had written this Muqaddimah he threw it into the ocean and said: "If this Muqaddimah was written sincerely and purely for Allah's sake then it should not get soaked with water" and the result was that when he recovered it from the sea it was still dry.

This most probably explains why this booklet has continued to enjoy widespread popularity since the day it first appeared up to this present day and that being so despite the existence of thousands of other Arabic Grammar works. Numerous commentaries of various sizes have been written on the Ājurrūmiyyah and it has even been committed to verse. Even up to this very day students are still engaged in memorising it because of its brevity and easy style. Such is the bounty that Allah, All-Mighty has bestowed on the author of the Ājurrūmiyyah and what a bounty - to have a book so small in size bring so much reward for its author. Surely such blessing and goodwill can only be the returns and proceeds of a Sincere and Pure Intention. May Allah reward the author richly and abundantly for not only presenting us with this excellent treatise on Arabic Nahw but also for teaching us the importance of a sincere and pure intention.

What the Ājurrūmiyyah does and does not do

When students begin to learn Arabic they are often not aware of what such learning really entails. Even well into their learning they might still not be aware of how wide a field Arabic study is and what is needed to become proficient in all the main areas. Often they are told to study this or that book without knowing precisely what its main focus or concentration is. Consequently, they spend a long time studying a particular work while they could have studied another work that is more suited to their specific needs. We will now take the Ājurrūmiyyah and see exactly what it is that it does and does not do.

The Ājurrūmiyyah aims at doing the following:

Providing the student with a general framework within which to understand, think and communicate about Arabic Naḥw rules in a clear and coherent fashion

Acquainting the student with the relevant Naḥw terms, concepts and basic rules

Enabling students to perform simple and small-scale syntactic analysis (i'rāb)

Serving as an introduction to Arabic grammatical texts of much wider scope and much greater detail

Enabling the student to cover all the basic Naḥw rules within a very short period of time

Equipping the student with the requisite grammatical knowledge needed (amongst other things) for performing basic communication tasks such as the production and reception of grammatically well-formed sentences

Providing the student with a working knowledge of Naḥw to enable him to tackle basic Islamic texts

On the other hand, the Ājurrūmiyyah is essentially a basic Naḥw text and not a full Arabic language course and as such it does not:

Develop the student's productive and receptive skills (listening, reading, speaking and writing)

Build the student's vocabulary except in the field of Naḥw

Provide the student with an in-depth knowledge of Naḥw

Give a comprehensive treatment of Ṣarf

Cover any of the other Arabic linguistic sciences such as 'Ilm al-Balāghah (rhetoric or stylistics), 'Ilm al-Lughah (lexicology), 'Ilm al-'Arūd (prosody), etc.

Provide the students with exercises and drills i.e. it focuses only on theoretical Naḥw and not applied Naḥw

The student, who, therefore, wishes to learn Arabic holistically, is advised to augment his Arabic studies with other Arabic language material. A comprehensive Arabic course will have to cover:

Arabic grammar, theoretical and applied in the form of exercises and drills

The four language skills: reading, writing, speaking and listening (i.e. Arabic production and comprehension)

Vocabulary building in the relevant fields and situational contexts (i.e. developing the student's Arabic lexicon)

The textbooks that normally cover these areas of Arabic language study are of two kinds:

Textbooks that are general and comprehensive in their coverage in that they attempt to cover all the areas of Arabic language study in a single book or set of books, e.g. al-'Arabiyyah li al-Nāshī'in, al-Kitāb al-Asāsiyy, etc.

Textbooks that are more narrow and specific in their coverage in that each textbook is intended to cover at least one area of Arabic language study

Furthermore, a student may want to learn Arabic for its own sake or as a means to access the vast Arabic Islamic legacy or as a tool for Islamic da'wah or for commercial purposes or for numerous other reasons.

Accordingly, he will have to include Arabic material that deals with his particular area of interest. For example, if his goal is to understand Islam and all of its disciplines in Arabic then he is required to study various Islamic components each with its own textbooks, etc.

Ten reasons why Muslims should learn Arabic:

- 1- Allah, the Almighty and Wise, chose and singled out Arabic from amongst all the languages of the world - past, present and future - to be the vehicle for His final Revelation to the whole of humanity. This fact alone should constitute sufficient reason for Muslims to learn Arabic. Certainly, if Allah so wished He could have revealed the Qur'an not only in any language but in every language but as He Himself states in the Holy Qur'an: "Verily, We sent It down as an Arabic Qur'an in order that you may understand". This verse implies that Arabic has certain unique features which make it superior to all the languages of the world and which enable it to convey the subtleties and mysteries of Allah's Speech in a manner that no other language can. Furthermore, it is Allah who endowed Arabic with these features and made it superior to all other languages.
- 2- If Allah is who He is - the Creator of the worlds - and His Messenger (Peace and Blessings be upon him) is who he is - the Best of Allah's creation - should not every Muslim in this world attempt to learn Arabic to understand Allah's Words and those of His Messenger? The Qur'an - even though it is in this world - is not from this world but rather from the Lord of the worlds. Allah, Most High says: "Verily It (i.e. the Qur'an) is a Revelation from One, All Wise and All Knowing". How can any Muslim live in this world finding time to do so many things and yet not find time to study the language of Allah's Holy Book and the Sunnah of His Holy Messenger (Peace and Blessings be upon him). How many of us spend so much time, effort and money on learning the sciences of this world but in comparison spend absolutely zero on learning the sciences of the Next world. If we really know who Allah is and who His Messenger is, we would not hesitate one second to learn the language of Allah's Book and the Sunnah of His Messenger. The Qur'an and Sunnah contain so much wealth - Real Wealth - but most of us prefer to remain poor and deprived forever.
- 3- A great number of scholars believe the Qur'anic inimitability to reside inter alia in its language. The science of al-Balāghah (eloquence/stylistics) was especially developed to deal with this particular dimension of the Qur'an. This science demonstrates in no uncertain terms that the Qur'an represents the Absolute Pinnacle of Eloquence and that it stands unrivalled and unchallenged in its stylistic output. However, to appreciate the stylistic aspects of the Qur'an presupposes having learnt Arabic. Thus, those who are not schooled in Arabic will forever be deprived of the Stylistic Beauty of the Qur'an and fail to see and comprehend the subtle mysteries that are enclosed in the depths of its language.

- 4- Apart from the Qur'an and Sunnah that are in Arabic there is also the vast and rich Islamic Legacy. This is the legacy left behind by the world's greatest minds. Without Arabic we would deprive ourselves of the fruits of almost fourteen centuries of Islamic scholarship. All of this scholarship was directed at serving Islam and the Muslim Ummah. Numerous sciences sprung up after the advent of Islam with the principal aim of preserving and explaining the Primary Islamic Sources. These sciences are still being studied and taught up to today in Islamic institutions and circles around the world - the result is an ever-expanding heritage. Had it not been for the past Muslim scholars then we would not have known Islam as we know it to today. May Allah reward them abundantly for the great service they have rendered to Islam and the Muslim Community.
- 5- A number of Islamic sciences derive explicitly from the Arabic linguistic sciences in that a number of the issues discussed therein are linguistic issues. To understand these issues requires a thorough grounding in the Arabic linguistic sciences on which they are based. These sciences include inter alia: al-Tafsīr (Qur'anic exegesis), 'Ulūm al-Qur'ān (Sciences of the Qur'an), 'Ilm al-ḥadīth (Science of ḥadīth), al-Fiqh (Islamic Jurisprudence), al-'Aqīdah (Islamic Theology). The reason for this being the case is the fact that the two primary sources of Islam, viz. the Qur'an and Sunnah, are in Arabic and in order to understand their message, unlock their hidden mysteries and treasures and appreciate the linguistic subtleties with which especially the Qur'an has been characterised one needs to be familiar with the Arabic sciences that will make such a task possible. Thus, al-Tafsīr is no more than an interpretation of the Qur'an, 'Ilm al-ḥadīth no more than an interpretation of the Prophetic Traditions, al-Fiqh no more than an extrapolation of legal rules from the Qur'an and the Sunnah, al-'Aqīdah no more than an extrapolation of a set of beliefs from the Qur'an and authentic Sunnah, etc. It is clear from the aforementioned that each of these Islamic sciences involves a detailed analysis and close investigation of the Arabic in which the Qur'an and Sunnah are couched. It is not uncommon to find that many a difference amongst scholars on a particular Islamic matter has its source in the manner in which they interpreted or read a particular Qur'anic verse or Prophetic tradition.

'Umar (may Allah be pleased with him) said: "Learn the Sunnah and learn Arabic; learn the Qur'an in Arabic for it is in Arabic".

He also said: "Learn Arabic for it is part of your Religion and learn how the estate of the deceased should be divided (al-Farā'id) for these are part of your Religion".

Imam al-Shafi'iy is reported to have said that he studied Arabic for twenty years (from its pure sources) in order to understand the Qur'an

Some scholars also maintain that learning Arabic is compulsory on every Muslim. The reason for this ruling is that learning the Qur'an and Sunnah is compulsory on every Muslim and since the Qur'an and Sunnah cannot be learnt without Arabic it follows that Arabic is also compulsory.

Al-Aşmu‘iyy is reported to have said: ‘What I fear most for a student of knowledge - if he does not know Nahw - that he may fall in the category of those mentioned in the hadīth: “Whosoever intentionally contrives a lie in my name, then let him prepare or reserve for himself a seat in the Fire”, because the Messenger of Allah (Peace and Blessings be upon him) never used to make grammatical errors in his speech so anything that you report from him and you make grammatically errors in it then you would have contrived a lie in his name’.

- 6- Knowledge of Arabic makes one’s devotion and worship much more meaningful. This is especially the case when performing salāh, reciting and listening to the Qur’an, listening to khutbahs, making du‘ās, etc. In short, knowing Arabic obviates the need for a mediator or interpreter between Allah and us. In other words, Arabic enables us to listen to the Qur’an and Prophetic statements first hand.
- 7- Moreover, what constitutes the Qur’an is not its mere meaning but rather its meaning together with the specific wording in which it is couched. This means that no matter how close a particular translation is to the actual meaning of the Qur’an it still does not constitute the Qur’an which is the Divine and Uncreated Speech of Allah. At best, a translation is no more than a human approximation of what the Qur’an means and as such is finite and can never replace the infinite Speech of Allah. Consider the following Qur’anic verses: “Say (O Muhammad): If the sea were ink for (writing) the Words of my Lord, surely the sea would be exhausted before the Words of my Lord would be finished, even if We brought another (sea) like it as backup” and “And if all the trees on the earth were pens and the sea (were ink wherewith to write), with seven seas behind it to add to its (supply), yet the Words of Allah would not be exhausted. Verily, Allah is All-Mighty, All-Wise”. In addition, reliance on a translation (which in itself is deficient because it is only a human approximation of Allah’s Divine Speech) means one will always be deprived of the effect of the actual wording which adds to the richness and inimitable eloquence of the Qur’an. It is not the translation that brings tears to the eyes of men but rather the Qur’an in the full splendour of its stirring words and moving meanings.
- 8- The problematic nature of translations is another reason why Muslims should learn Arabic. Much of our Islamic heritage is still inaccessible to the non-Arabic speaking Muslim population and so it will continue to be for a very long time. Translations also have their own deficiencies and shortcomings. These range from gross misinterpretation to poor quality and sub-standard translation.
- 9- Language being a conduit of culture has an indelible influence on its speakers. Arabic being the conduit of Islamic culture likewise has a positive Islamic influence on its speakers. No doubt, the Qur’an and Prophetic Sunnah have left a permanent mark on the Arabic language and are - to a large extent - also responsible for Arabic remaining fundamentally unchanged over the past fourteen centuries.

- 10- If certain non-Muslims (Orientalists) - spurned on by their hatred for Islam and the Muslims - studied Arabic for the purpose of destroying Islam and gaining control over the Muslims then why should Muslims - spurned on by their īmān and love for Islam and the Muslim Ummah - not study Arabic for the purpose of defending Islam against anti-Islamic forces and Islamophobia.

How to study the Ājurrūmiyyah

There is no single way of studying the Ājurrūmiyyah. Of the many ways of studying the Ājurrūmiyyah some might be effective and some not and that also differs from student to student. Nevertheless, the following are some guidelines for making the best of studying the Ājurrūmiyyah:

Making du‘ā’ and asking Allah to grant you mastery over Arabic as well as sincerity in your quest

Having studied some Arabic before even if it is not considerable

Finding a competent teacher especially someone who has been through the Ājurrūmiyyah himself and has taught it before

Working through the original Arabic text and only referring to the translation when necessary

Understanding not only the words, phrases and sentences in the text but also the grammatical structure underlying the words, phrases and sentences as far as possible

Organising the information into tables and charts to see how apparently disparate parts are systematically related to each other and to facilitate their understanding

Consolidating the information as one goes along through continuous revision and by doing exercises and even attempting to memorise it

Consciously applying the rules when reading, writing, speaking and listening to Arabic

Filling in examples in the text where such examples are required

Conducting simple syntactic analysis (i‘rāb) of the examples

Advice to students who wish to master Arabic grammar:

Arabic grammar is a fairly exact science almost like mathematics and physics and as such the student needs to take care that he or she has a proper grasp of the technical terms that are employed.

The student is required to see Arabic grammar as a unified and coherent system within which everything is interrelated and performs a function within that system. The student might find it difficult to perceive it at first but through patience and practice (and Allah’s Permission) he will eventually see a holistic system emerging from the seemingly disparate parts.

Arabic grammar is intellectually very demanding and as such the student needs to be vigilant and in a continuous state of thinking. Under no circumstances should he lower his guard for otherwise he will falter. Thus, a great deal is dependent on the student himself in terms of making sense of the information, integrating and assimilating it and then applying it in the comprehension and production of sentences.

About the Translation:

The current work is not intended to serve as a mere translation of the Ājurrūmiyyah. In addition, it serves to do the following:

provide examples where the author did not provide any explain the reason and rationale behind particular rules and points in the text provide additional information and elaborate on some of the rules

rectify some misconceptions put the material in perspective

I have also tried to give as literal a translation possible to facilitate a close reading and word-for-word analysis of the source text. It is not sufficient that the student merely understands the general drift of what is said but should rather try to understand every word and if possible the underlying grammatical structure i.e. how the words are syntactically related to each other. Of course it is impossible to translate every aspect of the source text but where it was possible to translate a particular aspect even at the expense of a better sounding translation I have done so.

It is said that the best way to learn Arabic is through Arabic, so why the current translation of the Ājurrūmiyyah. There is no doubt about the truth of this statement but considering that a lot of Arabic beginners do not know Arabic to start off with let alone being taught Arabic grammar - a highly intellectually demanding subject - in the medium of Arabic. There is no harm in trying to understand highly complex grammatical concepts in one's mother tongue especially during the initial stages but one should always aspire to understand them in the original language. At most one's mother tongue should serve as a stepping stone and not as a permanent replacement for Arabic as a medium of instruction for not only does it severely slow down the Arabic learning process but also defeats the whole purpose of learning Arabic in the first place - which is to become proficient in its use. Unless one's intention is merely to understand Arabic theoretically and not communicate it practically it would suffice learning it in one's mother tongue.

Thus, this present translation was never intended to replace Arabic as the medium of instruction but only to facilitate Arabic beginners getting a handle on Arabic grammar since too often have I witnessed how many of them struggle to come to grips with basic grammatical concepts with the result that a number of them develop a dislike for Arabic grammar and even drop out eventually. Furthermore, even though this work constitutes a translation it is only so in part for I try throughout to use the Arabic grammatical terms instead of their English counterparts only using the English equivalent when the term is introduced for the first time and even here I place the English term between brackets after the Arabic term indicating thereby the primacy of the Arabic term. Moreover, I have written all the Arabic terms in bold once again emphasising thereby their importance. Also, as I have mentioned before that the translation does not constitute an autonomous and self-contained text but should be used in conjunction with the Arabic. In fact, the Arabic text should form the primary text of study and the translation only serve to clarify and explain its difficult parts.

I have also purposely tried to avoid the use of highly technical linguistic terms - the kind used by Wright and Howell - since the aim is to clarify and simplify the Arabic text and not to obscure and complicate it further by using language just as intelligible to the Arabic beginner as the Arabic itself if not more. In cases where it was necessary to use such terms I have always endeavoured to explain their import.

An Overview of the Ājurrūmiyyah

The Ājurrūmiyyah can be divided into four main sections:

KALAM and its Constituent Parts

In this section the author deals with Kalām which provides the context for I‘rāb (the primary subject-matter of Naḥw) and the conditions under which it takes place. He first gives a definition of Kalām and thereafter mentions the parts of speech from which Kalām is composed together with the defining characteristics of each. It is these words - the units of Kalām - that are subject to I‘rāb or to its opposite, Binā‘.

The Chapter on I‘RĀB

This is most probably the most important section in that it constitutes the primary-subject matter of Naḥw and the center around which everything else revolves. I‘rāb involves the explicit or implicit change (Raf‘, Naṣb, Khafḍ or Jazm) at the endings of words (Asmā‘ and Af‘āl) by means of ḥarakāt (vowel markings) or ḥurūf (letters) due to particular places (i.e. places of Raf‘, Naṣb, Khafḍ or Jazm) that they occupy - places which are governed by particular ‘Awāmil. The opposite of I‘rāb is Binā‘ which refers to the fixed and unchanged state in which the endings of words (ḥurūf, some Af‘āl and some Asmā‘) occur. The author does not deal with Binā‘. The above definition of I‘rāb basically covers all the aspects of Naḥw i.e. (a) the four types of I‘rāb (Raf‘, Naṣb, Khafḍ and Jazm), (b) explicit and implicit I‘rāb (i.e. ḍāhir and Muqaddar), (c) the signs of I‘rāb (whether with ḥarakāt or ḥurūf), (d) the categories of Mu‘rabāt (declinable words) for the Ism and Fi‘l and (e) the places of I‘rāb in the Ism and Fi‘l and the ‘Awāmil that govern them (viz. the places of Raf‘, Naṣb and Khafḍ of the Ism, and places of Raf‘, Naṣb and Jazm of the Fi‘l). The places of I‘rāb comprise the bulk of Naḥw.

The Chapter on the AF‘ĀL

This section deals with the three types of Fi‘l (Māḍī, Muḍāri‘ and Amr) and the places in which the Muḍāri‘ is

Marfū‘ (i.e. when not preceded by a Nāṣib or Jāzim),

Manṣūb [i.e. when preceded by one of the ten (or more correctly, four) Nawāṣib] or

Majzūm [i.e. when preceded by one of the eighteen (or more correctly, sixteen) Jawāzim]

The Chapter on the ASMĀ‘

There is no chapter with this title in the Ājurrūmiyyah. However, I thought it appropriate to call this section as such because it comprises the places of I‘rāb in the Ism just as the previous section, entitled “The Chapter on the AF‘ĀL”, comprises the places of I‘rāb in the Fi‘l. Thus, the Ism is:

Marfū‘ when it occurs in one of the following places: the Fā‘il, Maf‘ūl (Na‘ib Fā‘il), Mubtada‘, Khabar, Ism Kāna, Khabar Inna and the Tābi‘ of the Marfū‘,

Manşūb when it occurs in one of the following places: the Maf'ūl bihī, Maşdar, Ṣarf Zamān, Ṣarf Makān, Ḥāl, Tamyīz, Mustathnā, Ism "لَا" , Munādā, Maf'ūl min ajlihī, Maf'ūl ma'ahū, Khabar "كان", Ism "إِنَّ" and the Tābi' of the Manşūb, or Makhfūḍ when it occurs in one of the following places: Makhfūḍ bil-Ḥarf, Makhfūḍ bil-Iḍāfah and the Tābi' of the Makhfūḍ.

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ

In the Name of Allah, Most Gracious, Most Merciful

KALĀM and its Constituent Parts

Kalam<sup>1</sup> is a compound<sup>2</sup> utterance<sup>3</sup> that conveys a complete and self-contained meaning<sup>4</sup> according to (the rules and conventions of Arabic) usage<sup>5</sup>.

Its constituent parts are three: the Ism<sup>6</sup> (noun), the Fi'l<sup>7</sup> (verb) and the Ḥarf<sup>8</sup> (particle) that is used to signify a meaning<sup>9</sup>.

The Ism is marked and identified by:

Khafd<sup>10</sup>

the Tanin<sup>11</sup>

the prefixing of the Alif and am (i.e. the definite article Al)

being governed by the Ḥuruf al-Khafd (prepositions/Genitive particles), and they are<sup>12</sup>:

من (e.g. رجع زيد من المسجد “Zayd returned from the mosque”)<sup>13</sup>

إلى (e.g. ذهب زيد إلى المدرسة “Zayd went to the school”)

عن (e.g. رميت السهم عن القوس “I shot the arrow from the bow”)

على (e.g. ركبت على الفرس “I rode on the horse”)

في (e.g. الطالب في الفصل “The student is in the classroom”)

رُبَّ (e.g. ألا رُبَّ مولودٍ وليس له أبٌ (Alas, there might be a child who has no father”)

بِال (e.g. مررتُ بالمدرسة “I passed by the school”)

كالكاف (e.g. زيد كالبدر “Zayd is like the full moon”)

للام (e.g. الكتاب لزيدٍ “The book belongs to Zayd”)

(being preceded) by the Ḥurūf al-Qasam<sup>14</sup> (Particles of Oath), and they are:

الواو (e.g. بِوالله “By Allah!”)

الباء (e.g. بِالله “By Allah!”)

التاء (e.g. بِتالله “By Allah!”)

The Fi'l is marked and identified by:

قَدْ (e.g. قَدْ جاء زيد “Indeed, Zayd came”,
قَدْ يَجِيءُ زيد “Zayd may come”)

السين (e.g. سَأُزُورُكَ هذا المساءَ “I will visit you this evening”)

سَوْفَ (e.g. سَوْفَ نَقُومُ أمامَ الله جميعاً “We will all stand in front of Allah”)

تاء التأنيث الساكنة (unvowelled Tā’ of Femininity<sup>15</sup>)

(e.g. جاءَتْ زينبُ “Zaynab came”)

The Ḥarf is that for which the sign of the Ism and the sign of the Fi'l are not valid<sup>16</sup>.

The Chapter on I'RĀB<sup>17</sup>

I'rāb<sup>18</sup> is a change affecting the endings of words<sup>19</sup> due to the difference in the 'Awāmil<sup>20</sup> that enter and operate on them, (whether the change is) Lafḍan (real and explicit, such that it can be verbally expressed) or Taqdīran<sup>21</sup> (hypothetical and implicit, such that it cannot be verbally expressed but is instead assumed in the mind).

Its types are four: Raf', Naṣb, Khafḍ and Jazm.

Of this, Raf', Naṣb and Khafḍ apply to the Asmā' (nouns) while Jazm does not feature in them at all.

Of this, Raf', Naṣb and Jazm apply to the Af'āl (verbs) while Khafḍ does not feature in them at all.

The Chapter on Identifying the ‘ALĀMĀT AL-I‘RĀB

For Raf‘ there are four ‘Alāmāt (signs): the Ḍammah, the Wāw, the Alif and the Nun.

As for the Ḍammah it is an ‘Alāmāh of Raf‘ in four places:

in the Ism Mufrad (singular noun)<sup>22</sup>

the Jam‘ Taksīr (broken plural)

the Jam‘ Mu‘annath Sālim (sound feminine plural), and the Fi‘l Muḍāri‘ (present/future tense) that does not have anything attached to its ending<sup>23</sup>.

[E.g. يَسْأَلُ المدرسُ والطلابُ والطالباتُ (The teacher, the male students and the female students ask)]

As for the Wāw it is an ‘Alāmāh of Raf‘ in two places:

in the Jam‘ Muḍakkār Sālim (sound masculine plural), and in the Asmā’ Khamsah<sup>24</sup> (five nouns), and they are:

أَبُوكَ (Your father)

أَخُوكَ (You brother)

حَمُوكَ (You father-in-law)

فُوكَ (Your mouth)

ذُو مَالٍ (Possessor of money/wealth)

[E.g. جاء المدرسونَ وأبوكَ (The teachers and your father came)]

As for the Alif it is an ‘Alāmāh of Raf‘ in the Tathniyat al-Asmā’ (dual noun) specifically.

[E.g. جاء المدرسَانِ والدرستَانِ (The two male teachers and the two female teachers came)]

As for the Nūn it is an ‘Alāmāh of Raf‘ in the Fi‘l Muḍāri‘ that has the following (Ḍamā’ir: personal pronouns) suffixed to it:

the Ḍamīr Tathniya (personal pronoun of duality), or the Ḍamīr Jam‘ (personal pronoun of the masculine plural) or the Ḍamīr al-Mu‘annathah al-Mukhāṭabah (personal pronoun of second person feminine singular).

[E.g. تَجْلِسَانِ يا طالبانِ، تَجْلِسُونَ يا طلابَ، تَجْلِسِينَ يا طالبةَ (You two students are sitting, You students are sitting, You female student are sitting)]

For Naṣb there are five ‘Alāmāt: the Faṭḥah, the Alif the Kasrah, the Yā‘ and the Ḥaḍfu an-Nūn (dropping of the Nūn).

As for the Faṭḥah it is an ‘Alāmāh of Naṣb in three places:

in the Ism Mufrad (singular noun)

the Jam‘ Taksīr (broken plural), and the Fi‘l Muḍāri‘ when it is preceded by a Nāṣib<sup>25</sup> and does not have anything attached to its ending.

[E.g. لَنْ أَسْأَلَ الْمُدْرَسَ وَالطَّلَابَ (I will not ask the teacher and the students)]

As for the Alif it is an ‘Alāmah of Naṣb in the Asmā’ Khamsah like

رَأَيْتُ أَبَاكَ وَأَخِيكَ (I saw your father and your brother)

And what resembles that.

As for the Kasrah it is an ‘Alāmah of Naṣb in the Jam‘ Mu’annath Sālim.

[E.g. سَأَلْتُ الْمُدْرَسَاتِ (I asked the female teachers)]

As for the Yā’ it is an ‘Alāmah of Naṣb in:

the Tathniyah

the Jam‘ (Muḍakkār Sālim).

[E.g. سَأَلْتُ الطَّالِبَيْنِ وَالْمُدْرَسَيْنِ (I asked the two students and the teachers)]

As for the Ḥaḍfu an-Nūn it is an ‘Alāmah of Naṣb in the Af‘āl Khamsah whose Raf‘ is with the Tabāt an-Nūn (fixing of the Nūn).

[E.g. لَنْ تَجْلِسُونَ يَا طُلَّابَ، لَنْ تَجْلِسِينَ يَا طَالِبَةَ، لَنْ تَجْلِسَانَ يَا طَالِبَانَ،

For Khafḍ there are three ‘Alāmat: the Kasrah, the Yā’ and the Fathah.

As for the Kasrah it is an ‘Alāmah of Khafḍ in three places:

in the Ism Mufrad Muṣarraf (fully-declinable/triptote singular noun)

the Jam‘ Taksīr Muṣarraf (fully-declinable/triptote broken plural), and the Jam‘ Mu’annath Sālim.

[E.g. سَلَّمْتُ عَلَى الْمُدْرَسِ وَالطَّلَابِ وَالطَّالِبَاتِ (I greeted the teacher, the male students and female students)]

As for the Ya’ it is an ‘Alāmah of Khafḍ in three places:

in Asmā’ Khamsah

in the Tathniyah, and

the Jam‘ (Muḍakkār Sālim).

[E.g. سَلَّمْتُ عَلَى أَبِيكَ وَالطَّالِبَيْنِ وَالْمُدْرَسَيْنِ (I greeted your father, the two students and the teachers)]

As for the Fathah it is an ‘Alāmah of Khafḍ in the al-Ism alladī lā yanṣarifu (the noun which is not fully-declinable/not triptote)<sup>26</sup>.

[E.g. سَلَّمْتُ عَلَى أَحْمَدَ وَعِلْمَاءَ مِنْ مِصْرَ (I greeted Ahmad and scholars from Egypt)]

For Jazm there are ‘Alāmatān (two signs): the Sukūn and Ḥaḍf.

As for the Sukūn it is an ‘Alāmah of Jazm in the Fi‘l Muḍāri‘ Ṣaḥīḥ al-Ākhir (present/future tense verb that has a strong/sound ending).

[E.g. لَمْ أَسْأَلْ (I did not asked)]

As for Ḥaḍf it is an ‘Alāmah of Jazm in:

the Fi‘l Muḍāri‘ Mu‘tall al-Ākhir (present/future tense verb that has a weak ending) in the Af‘āl whose Raf‘ is with the Tabāt an-Nūn.

[E.g. ~~لم تدعُو~~ ~~ولم ترمي~~ ~~ولم تنسى~~ يا محمد، (Muhammad, you did not call, you did not throw and you did not forget)]

[E.g. ~~لم يجلسين~~ يا طالبة، ~~لم يجلسون~~ يا طلاب، ~~لم تجلسان~~ يا طالبان
(You female student did not sit, You male students did not sit and You two students did not sit)]

Section (on the MU‘RABĀT BIL-ḤARAKĀT and the MU‘RABĀT BIL-ḤURŪF)

The Mu‘rabāt (declinable words) are two groups: a group that is declined with Ḥarakāt<sup>27</sup> (vowels)<sup>28</sup> and a group that is declined with Ḥurūf (letters)<sup>29</sup>.

That which is declined with Ḥarakāt is of four types:

the Ism Mufrad

the Jam‘ Taksīr

the Jam‘ Mu‘annath Sālim, and the Fi‘l Muḍāri‘ that does not have anything suffixed to it.

All of them are declined with a Ḍammah for Raf‘, a Faṭḥah for Naṣb, a Kasrah for Khafḍ and a Sukūn for Jazm.

Three things are excluded from this (norm/general rule):

the Jam‘ Mu‘annath Sālim which is declined with a Kasrah for Naṣb (instead of the normal Faṭḥah)

the al-Ism alladī lā yaṣharifu which is declined with a Faṭḥah for Khafḍ (instead of the normal Kasrah) the Fi‘l Muḍāri‘ Mu‘tall al-Ākhir which is declined with the Ḥaḍf al-Ākhir for Jazm (instead of the normal Sukūn).

That which is declined with Ḥurūf is of four types:

the Tathniyah

the Jam‘ Muḍakkar Sālim

the Asmā‘ Khamsah<sup>30</sup>

the Af‘āl Khamsah<sup>31</sup>, and they are:

يفعلان، تفعلان، يفعلون، تفعلون، تفعلين

As for the Tathniyah it is Marfū‘ with the Alif, Maṣṣūb and Makhfūḍ with the Yā<sup>32</sup>.

As for the Jam‘ Muḍakkar Salim it is Marfu‘ with the Waw, Maṣṣub and Makhfūḍ with the Yā<sup>33</sup>.

As for the Asmā‘ Khamsah it is Marfū‘ with the Wāw, Maṣṣūb with the Alif and Makhfūḍ with the Yā’.

As for the Af‘āl Khamsah it is Marfū‘ with the Nūn, Maṣṣūb and Majzūm with the Ḥaḍf thereof.

The Chapter on the AF‘ĀL

The Af‘āl are three: Māḍi, Muḍāri‘ and the Amr, example: - ضَرَبَ

يَضْرِبُ - اِضْرِبْ

(He hit - he hits/will hit - Hit!)<sup>34</sup>

The Māḍi ends perpetually in a Fathah<sup>35</sup>.

The Amr is perpetually Majzūm<sup>36</sup> (i.e. it declined by means of a sign of Jazm).

The Muḍāri‘ is that which has at its beginning one of the four additional letters brought together in your statement: أنيت<sup>37</sup> (ت،ي،ن،أ) and it is perpetually Marfū‘ unless it is preceded by a Nāṣib (a particle causing Naṣb) or Jāzim (a word causing Jazm).

The Nawāṣib (the plural of Nāṣib) are ten<sup>38</sup>, and they are:

أن<sup>39</sup> (أريد أن أذهب إلى المسجد) (I want to go the mosque)

لن (لن أترك الصلاة) (I will not abandon prayer)

إذن {إذن تنجح (من يقول: سأجتهد)} {In that case you will seek (for someone who says: ‘I will work hard’)}

كي (خُلِقْنَا كَيْ نَعْبُدَ اللَّهَ) (We were created to worship Allah)

"كي" لام (the Lām of "كي" i.e. the Lām that conveys the meaning of causation)

(أسافر إلى مكة لأطلب العلم النافع) (I travel to Makkah to seek beneficial knowledge)

لام الجحود (the Lām of Denial i.e. the Lām reinforces prior Negation)

(لم يكن الله ليغفر لهم) (Allah never intended to forgive them)

حتى (سأجتهد حتى أنجح) (I will work hard until I succeed)

الجواب بالفاء (the complement of the Fā’<sup>40</sup>)

(لا تكسل فترسب) (Do not be lazy and you will fail)

الجواب بـ"الواو" (the complement of the Wāw)

(لا تتكلم وتأكل الطعام) (Do not speak while eating)

أؤ<sup>41</sup> (أعبد الله أو تموت) (Worship Allah until you die)

The Jawāzim (the plural of Jāzim) are eighteen<sup>42</sup>, and they are:

لم (لم يلد ولم يولد) (He does not beget and He was not begotten)

لما (لما أبدأ بالمراجعة) (I have not started with revision yet)

ألم (لم نَشْرَحْ لَكَ صَدْرَكَ) (Have I not opened for you your chest?)

ألمّا (ألمّا تَقْرَأْ كُلَّ الْقُرْآنِ) (Have you not read the whole Qur'an yet)

لام الأمر والدعاء (Lām of Command and Supplication)

(لِإِنْفِقْ ذُو سَعَةٍ مِنْ سَعَتِهِ) (Let every possessor of wealth spend of his wealth)

لا" في النهي والدعاء (Lā used in Prohibition and Supplication)

(لَا تَغْضَبْ) (Do not get angry)

إن (إِنْ تَجْتَهِدْ تَنْجَحْ) (If you work hard you will succeed)

ما (مَا تَفْعَلْ مِنْ خَيْرٍ تَجِدْهُ عِنْدَ اللَّهِ) (Whatever you do of good you will find it with Allah)

من (مَنْ يَرْحَمِ يُرْحَمِ) (Whosoever shows mercy will be shown mercy too)

مهما (مَهْمَا تَفْعَلْ تُسْأَلُ عَنْهُ) (Whatever you do you will be asked about it)

إذما (إِذَا تَذَكَّرَ رَبَّكَ يَذْكُرْكَ) (If you remember your Lord He will remember you)

أيّ (أَيُّ عَالِمٍ يَتَكَبَّرْ يُغَضِّهِ اللَّهُ) (Any scholar who keeps himself haughty Allah hates him)

متى (مَتَى تَحْسَدُ تَهْلِكْ) (Whenever you are envious you will be destroyed)

أَيّان (أَيّانَ تَسْتَغْفِرُ رَبَّكَ يَغْفِرْ لَكَ ذُنُوبَكَ) (Whenever you ask your Lord's Forgiveness He will forgive you your sins)

أين (أَيْنَمَا تَنْزَلُ تُكْرَمُ) (Wherever you reside you will be honoured)

أنى (أَيْنَ تَسْكُنُ يُكْرِمُكَ النَّاسُ) (Wherever you live people will honour you)

حيثما (حَيْثَمَا تَعْمَلُ يُكْتَبُ عَلَيْكَ) (Whatever you do then your deed will be recorded)

كيفما (كَيْفَمَا تُعَامِلُ أَخَاكَ يُعَامِلُكَ) (However you treat your brother he will treat you)

إذا (Idā used in poetry specifically)

(اسْتَغْنِ مَا أَغْنَاكَ رَبُّكَ بِالْغِنَى * وَإِذَا تُصِيبَكَ خِصَابَةٌ فَتَحَمَّلْ)

(Seek wealth for as long as your Lord enriches you with wealth
And when poverty strikes you then persevere)

The Chapter on the MARFŪ‘ĀT AL-ASMĀ’<sup>43</sup>

(the Places of RAF‘ in the ISM)

The Marfū‘āt are seven, and they are:

The Fā‘il (doer),

the Maf‘ūl (direct object) whose Fā‘il is not named or mentioned),

the Mubtada’ (subject),

its Khabar (predicate),

the Ism (noun) of Kāna and its sisters, and the Khabar (predicate) of Inna and its sisters, the Tābi‘ (follower or modifier) of the Marfū‘, and it is four things: the

- (1) Na‘t (qualifying adjective or descriptive noun), (2) ‘Atf (conjunction),
(3) Taukīd (corroborative) and (4) Badal (substitute).

The Chapter on the FĀ'IL

The Fā'il is an Ism that is Marfū' and has its Fi'l mentioned before it.

It is of two types: Ḍāhir (substantive noun) and Muḍmar (personal pronoun).

The Ḍāhir is like when you say<sup>44</sup>:

قام زيد _____ (Zayd stood)

يقوم زيد _____ (Zayd stands)

قام الزيدان _____ (The two Zayds stood)

يقوم الزيدان _____ (The two Zayds stand)

قام الزيدون _____ [The Zayds (pl.) stood]

يقوم الزيدون _____ [The Zayds (pl.) stand]

قام الرجال _____ [The men (pl.) stood]

يقوم الرجال _____ [The men (pl.) stand]

قامت هند _____ (Hind stood)

تقوم هند _____ (Hind stands)

قامت الهندان _____ (The two Hinds stood)

تقوم الهندان _____ (The two Hinds stand)

قامت الهندات _____ (The Hinds (pl.) stood)

تقوم الهندات _____ [The Hinds (pl.) stand]

قامت الهنود _____ [The Hinds (pl.) stood]

تقوم الهنود _____ (The Hinds (pl.) stand)

قام أخوك _____ (Your brother stood)

يقوم أخوك _____ (Your brother stands)

قام غلام ي _____ (My servant stood)

يقوم غلام ي _____ (My servant stands)

and what is similar to that.

The Muḍmar is twelve<sup>45</sup> like when you say:

ضربت _____ (I hit)

ضربنا _____ (We hit)

ضربت _____ [You (masc. sing.) hit]

ضَرَبْتَ _____ [You (fem. sing.) hit]

ضَرَبْتُمَا _____ [You (masc./fem. dual) hit]

ضَرَبْتُمْ _____ [You (masc. pl.) hit]

ضَرَبْتُنَّ _____ [You (fem. pl.) hit]

ضَرَبَ (هُوَ) (He hit)

ضَرَبَتْ (هِيَ) (She hit)

ضَرَبُوا _____ [They (masc. dual) hit]<sup>46</sup>

ضَرَبُوا _____ [They (masc. pl.) hit]

ضَرَبْنَ _____ [They (fem. pl.) hit]

The Chapter on the AL-MAF'ŪL ALLAḌĪ LAM YUSAMMA FĀ'ILUHŪ

47

(Maf'ul whose Fā'il is not named)

It is an Ism that is Marfū' whose Fā'il is not mentioned with it.

If the Fi'l is:

Māḍī its initial letter<sup>48</sup> is marked with a Ḍammah and what is before its final letter is marked with a Kasrah, and if it is:

Muḍāri' its first letter is marked with a Ḍammah and what<sup>49</sup> is before its final letter is marked with a Faṭḥah.

It is of two types: Ḍāhir and Muḍmar.

The Ḍāhir is like when you say:

ضُرِبَ زَيْدٌ	( Zayd was hit)
يُضْرَبُ زَيْدٌ	( Zayd is/will be hit)
أَكْرِمَ عَمْرُو	( 'Amr was honoured)
يُكْرَمُ عَمْرُو	( 'Amr is/will be honoured)

and what is similar to that.

The Muḍmar is twelve, like when you say:

ضُرِبْتُ	[ I (masc./fem.) was hit]
ضُرِبْنَا	[ We (masc./fem. dual/pl.) were hit]
ضُرِبْتَ	[ You (masc. sing.) were hit]
ضُرِبْتِ	[ You (fem. sing.) were hit]
ضُرِبْتُمَا	[ You (masc./fem. dual) were hit]
ضُرِبْتُمْ	[ You (masc. pl.) were hit]
ضُرِبْتُنَّ	[ You (fem. pl.) were hit]
ضُرِبَ (هُوَ)	( He was hit)
ضُرِبَتْ (هِيَ)	( She was hit)
ضُرِبُوا	[ They (masc. dual) were hit]
ضُرِبُوا	[ They (masc. pl.) were hit]
ضُرِبْنَ	[ They (fem. pl.) were hit]

The Chapter on the MUBTADA' and the KHABAR

The Mubtada' is an Ism that is Marfū' and is stripped of verbally expressed 'Awāmil<sup>50</sup>.

The Khabar is an Ism that is Marfū' and is predicated to it (i.e. the Mubtada', so as to give information about it) like when you say:

زيد قائم (Zayd is standing)

الزيدان قائمان (The two Zayds are standing)

الزيدون قائمون [The Zayds (pl.) are standing] and structures similar to that.

The Mubtada' is (of) two types: Dāhir and Muḍmar.

The Dāhir has (already) been mentioned.

The Muḍmar is twelve and they are:

أنا	[I (masc. fem.)]
نحن	[We (masc./fem. dual/pl.)]
أنت	[You (masc. sing.)]
أنتِ	[You (fem. sing.)]
أنثما	[You (masc./fem. dual)]
أنتم	[You (masc. pl.)]
أننَّ	[You (fem. pl.)]
هو	He
هي	She
هما	[They (masc. dual)]
هم	[They (masc. pl.)]
هنَّ	[They (fem. pl.)]

Like when you say:

أنا قائم [I (masc.) am standing]

نحن قائمون [We (masc. pl.) are standing]

The Khabar is (of) two types: Mufrad (single word) and Ghayr al-Mufrad (not a single word i.e. compound).

The Mufrad is like:

زيد قائم (Zayd is standing)

The Ghayr al-Mufrad is four things:

the Jarr wa Majrūr

the Zarf

the Fi'l with its Fā'il

the Mubtada' with its Khabar

زيد في الدار _____ (Zayd is in the house)

زيد عندك _____ (Zayd is with you)

زيد قام أبوه _____ (Zayd, his father is standing)

زيد جارئته ذاهبة _____ (Zayd, his maid is going)

The Chapter on the ‘AWĀMIL that precede and operate on the MUBTADA’ and KHABAR

These (‘Awāmil) are three things: Kana and its sisters, Inna and its sisters and Ḍanantu and its sisters.

As for Kāna and its sisters they put the Ism<sup>51</sup> in a state of Raf‘ and the Khabar in a state of Naṣb - and they are:

كان	[was (in general)]
أمسى	(was in the afternoon or evening/became)
أصبح	(was in the morning/became)
أضحى	(was in the late morning/became)
ظلّ	(was during the daytime)
بات	(was during the nighttime)
صار	(became)
ليس	(is not)
ما زال	(continued/was still)
ما انفكّ	(continued/was still)
ما فتئ	(continued/was still)
ما برح	(continued/was still)
ما دام	(as long as/for the duration)

as well as what is conjugated thereof (according to the Māḍī, Muḍāri‘ and Amr forms) like:

كان - يكون - كنّ	(was - is/will be - Be!)
أصبح - يُصبح - أصبح	[was - is/will be - Be! (all in the morning)]

You say (for example):

كان زيد قائماً	( Zayd was standing )
ليس عمرو شاخصاً	(‘ Amr is not present/going )

and what is similar to that.

As for Inna and its sisters they put the Ism<sup>52</sup> in a state of Naṣb and the Khabar in a state of Raf‘ - and they are:

إنّ	(Indeed/verily)
أنّ	(that)
لكنّ	(but/however)

كَأَنَّ (as if)

لَيْتَ (If only)

لَعَلَّ (hopefully)

You say (for example):

إِنَّ زَيْدًا قَائِمٌ (Indeed, Zayd is standing)

لَيْتَ عَمْرًا شَاخِصًا (If only 'Amr is present/going)

and what is similar to that.

The meaning of إِنَّ and أِنَّ is for emphasis and corroboration (Tawkīd), لَكِنَّ for setting something straight (Istidrāk), كَأَنَّ for comparison (Tashbīh), لَيْتَ for expressing a wish (Tamannī) and لَعَلَّ for expressing a hope (Tarajjī) or expectation (Tawaqqu‘).

As for Ḍanantu and its sisters they put the Muḃtada’ and the Khabar in a state of Naṣb as their two Maḃ‘ūls - and they are:

ظَنَنْتُ (I thought)

حَسِبْتُ (I reckoned/supposed/deemed)

خَلَّيْتُ (I supposed/imagined/deemed)

زَعَمْتُ (I claimed)

رَأَيْتُ (I regarded/viewed/consider)

عَلِمْتُ (I knew)

وَجَدْتُ (I found)

اتَّخَذْتُ (I took/assumed)

جَعَلْتُ (I made/made into)

سَمِعْتُ (I heard)

You say (for example):

ظَنَنْتُ زَيْدًا مُنْطَلِقًا (I thought Zayd to be going)

خَلَّيْتُ عَمْرًا شَاخِصًا (I imagined 'Amr to be present/going)

and what is similar to that.

The Chapter on the NA‘T [and an explanation of the MA‘RIFAH (definite noun) and NAKIRAH (indefinite noun)]

The Na‘t<sup>53</sup> is a Tābi‘ (follower) of the Man‘ūt in the latter’s Raf‘, Naṣb, Khafḍ, Ta‘rīf (definiteness) and Tankīr (indefiniteness). You say (for example):

قام زيدٌ العاقلُ _____ (Zayd, the intelligent, stood)

رأيتُ زيداً العاقلُ _____ (I saw Zayd, the intelligent)

مررتُ بزيدٍ العاقلِ _____ (I passed by Zayd, the intelligent)

The Ma‘rifah is five things:

the Ism Muḍmar (personal pronoun) like: أنا (I) and أنت [you (masc. sing.)]

the Ism ‘Alam (proper name) like: زيد (Zayd) and مكة (Makkah)

the Ism Mubham (vague noun)<sup>54</sup> like: هذا [this (masc. sing.)], هذه [this (fem. sing.)] and هؤلاء [these (masc./fem. pl.)]

the Ism that has the Alif and Lām like: الرجل (the man) and الغلام (the youngster/male servant)

What is Muḍāf (annexed) to one of these four<sup>55</sup>.

The Nakirah is every Ism that is commonly (and equally) applied to (all the members of) its class such that no one (member) is to be distinguished by it (i.e. that Ism) at the exclusion of all the others. An easy way of understanding it is (to regard the Nakirah as) everything to which the Alif and Lām can be validly prefixed, like الرجل (the man) and الغلام (the lad/servant).

The Chapter on the ‘AṬF

The Ḥurūf al-‘Aṭf (conjunctions) are ten, and they are:

الواو	(and)
الفاء	(shortly/immediately thereafter)
ثمّ	(a while thereafter)
أو	(or)
أمّ	(or)
إمّا	(either/or)
بلّ	(rather/instead)
لّا	(not)
لكنّ	(but), and
حتّى	(up to including/even), in some places <sup>56</sup> .

If you use them (i.e. these conjunctions) to conjoin (a word) to something that is Marfū‘, then you make (that word also) Marfū‘, or to something that is Manṣūb, then you make (it) Manṣūb, or to something that is Makhfūḍ, then you make (it also) Makhfūḍ, or to something that is Majzūm, then you make (it also) Majzūm. You say (for example):

قام زيدٌ وعمروُ _____ (Zayd and ‘Amr came)

رأيت زيداً وعمراً _____ (I saw Zayd and ‘Amr)

مررت بزيدٍ وعمروِ _____ (I passed by Zayd and ‘Amr)

زيدٌ لم يقم ولم يقعد<sup>57</sup> _____ (Zayd did not stand and he did not sit)

The Chapter on the TAUKEĪD<sup>58</sup>

The Taukĭd is a Tābi‘ (follower) of the Mu‘akkad (i.e. the expression that is corroborated) in its being Marfū‘, Manṣūb, Makhfūḍ and Ma‘rifah.

It is accomplished with definite words, and they are:

النفس (self/in person)

العين (self/in person)

كلّ (all/every/the whole lot)

أجمع (all/every/the whole lot) including the Tawābi‘ (followers) of أجمع, and they are:

أجمع (all/every i.e. the same as أجمع, أبتع، أبصع)

You say (for example):

قام زيدٌ نفسه (Zayd, himself, came/Zayd came in person)

رأيت القومَ كلّهم (I saw the people, all of them)

مررت بالقوم أجمعين (I passed by the people, the whole lot)

The Chapter on the BADAL

When one Ism is substituted (in meaning not in form) for another Ism or one Fi'1 for another Fi'1 (i.e. the one is made the Badal of the other), it follows it<sup>59</sup> (the former) in all of its I'rab.

It is of four types:

Badal ash-Shay' min ash-Shay' (Substitute of the thing/whole for the thing/whole)<sup>60</sup>

Badal al-Ba'd min al-Kull (Substitute of the part for the whole)

Badal alishtimal (Substitute of the quality for the possessor of the quality or substitute of a thing for the container of that thing)

Badal al-Ghalaṭ (Substitute due to error i.e. the correction is substituted for the error)<sup>61</sup>

like when you say:

قام زيدٌ أخوك (Zayd, your brother, stood)

أكلت الرغيفَ ثلثَه (I ate the loaf, a third of it)

نفعني زيدٌ علمَه (Zayd, his knowledge, benefited me)

رأيت زيداً الفرسَ [I saw Zayd, (I mean) the horse]

You wanted to say: الفرس but then you erred (by saying: زيداً ) so you substituted زيداً for it (i.e. الفرس)<sup>62</sup>.

The on the MANŞŪBĀT AL-ASMĀ'

(the Places of Naşb of the Ism)

The Manşūbāt<sup>63</sup> are fifteen<sup>64</sup>, and they are:

the Maf'ūl bihī (direct object)

the Maşdar (infinitive)

the Ṣarf Zamān (adverb of time)

the Ṣarf Makān (adverb of place)

the Ḥāl (denotative of state/condition)

the Tamyīz (specifier)

the Mustathnā (thing excepted/excluded)

the Ism of "لَا"

the Munādā (vocative/thing or person called) the Maf'ūl min ajlihī (object of reason)

the Maf'ūl ma'ahū (object of accompaniment)

the Khabar of "كان" and its sisters

the Ism of "إِنَّ" and its sisters the Tābi' of something that is Manşūb, and it is four things: the Na't, the 'Aţf, the Taukīd and the Badal.

The Chapter on the MAF'ŪL BIHĪ

It is an Ism that is Manṣūb (denotating) that on which the action occurs, like when you say:

ضربْتُ زيداً (I hit Zayd)

ركبتُ الفرسَ (I rode the horse)

It is of two types: Dāhir and Muḍmar.

The Dāhir has already been mentioned.

The Muḍmar is two groups: Muttaṣil (attached personal pronouns) and Munfaṣil (detached personal pronouns).

The Muttaṣil is twelve (in number), and they are:

ضربنِي<sup>65</sup> _____ [He hit me (masc./fem.)]

ضربْنَا _____ [He hit us (masc./fem. dual/pl.)]

ضربَكَ _____ [He hit you (masc. sing.)]

ضربِكِ _____ [He hit you (fem. sing.)]

ضربَكُمَا<sup>66</sup> _____ [He hit you (masc./fem. dual)]

ضربَكُم<sup>67</sup> _____ [He hit you (masc. pl.)]

ضربكنَّ<sup>68</sup> _____ [He hit you (fem. pl.)]

ضربهُ _____ (He hit him)

ضربَهَا _____ (He hit her)

ضربهُمَا _____ [He hit them (masc./fem. dual)]

ضربَهُم _____ [He hit them (masc. pl.)]

ضربَهُنَّ _____ [He hit them (fem. pl.)]

The Munfaṣil is (also) twelve (in number):

إِيَّايَ	[me (masc./fem.)]
إِيَّانَا	[us (masc./fem. dual/pl.)]
إِيَّاكَ	[you (masc. sing.)]
إِيَّاكِ	[you (fem. sing.)]
إِيَّاكُمَا	[you (masc./fem. dual)]
إِيَّاكُمْ	[you (masc. pl.)]
إِيَّاكُنَّ	[you (fem. pl.)]
إِيَّاهُ	(him)
إِيَّاهَا	(her)
إِيَّاهُمَا	[them (masc./fem. dual)]
إِيَّاهُمْ	[them (masc. pl.)]
إِيَّاهُنَّ <sup>69</sup>	[them (fem. pl.)]

The Chapter on the MAŞDAR

70

The Maşdar is an Ism that is Manşūb and comes third in the conjugation of the Fi‘l:

ضرب - يضرب - ضَرِباً (hit - hits/will hit - hitting)

It is of two types: Lafđiyy and Ma‘nawiyy.

If its form (Lafđ) agrees with the form of its Fi‘l, then it is Lafđiyy, like:

قَتَلْتُهُ قَتْلًا (I killed him a killing i.e. I killed him definitely)

If it agrees with the meaning (Ma‘nā) of its Fi‘l, then it is Ma‘nawiyy<sup>71</sup>, like:

جَلَسْتُ قَعُودًا (I sat a sitting i.e. I sat definitely)

قَمْتُ وَقُوفًا (I stood a standing i.e. I stood definitely) and what is that are similar to that.

The Chapter on the Zarf ZAMĀN and Zarf MAKĀN

The Zarf Zamān is an Ism of time that is Manṣūb by implying or assuming the existence of (the preposition) في (“in”)<sup>72</sup>, like:

اليوم	today/daytime (i.e. from dawn or sunrise till sunset)
الليلة	tonight/nighttime (i.e. from sunset till dawn)
غدوة	early morning (i.e. from dawn till sunrise)
بكرة	early in the day (i.e. from dawn or sunrise onwards)
سحراً	late night (i.e. the last part of the night before dawn)
غداً	tomorrow
عتمة	early night (i.e. the first third of the night)
صباحاً	morning (i.e. from midnight till midday)
مساءً	afternoon-evening (i.e. from midday to midnight)
أبداً	infinite future
أمداً	future
حيناً	time/anytime

and what is similar to that.

The Zarf Makān is an Ism of time that is Manṣūb by implying or assuming the existence of (the preposition) في (“in”), like:

أمام	in front/before
خلف	behind
قدام	in front
وراء	behind
فوق	above/on top of
تحت	below/beneath
عند	at/with/by
مع	with/together with/in the company of
إزاء	opposite to
حذاء	near/close to
تلقاء	opposite to

ثَمَّ there

هِنَا here

and what is similar to that.

The Chapter on the Ḥāl

The Ḥāl is an Ism that is Manṣūb and specifies or clarifies what is vague as regards states or conditions<sup>73</sup>, like when you say:

جاء زيدٌ رَاكِبًا _____ (Zayd came riding)

رَكِبْتُ الفرسَ مُسَرَّجًا _____ (I rode the horse saddled)

لَقِيتُ عبدَ الله رَاكِبًا _____ (I met ‘Abdullah whilst riding)<sup>74</sup>

and what is similar to that.

The Ḥāl does not occur except as an Ism Nakirah and does not occur except after the completion of the Kalām<sup>75</sup>.

Its Ṣāhib (subject of the state i.e. the one who is in the particular state) does not occur except as an Ism Ma‘rifah<sup>76</sup>.

The Chapter on the TAMYĪZ

77

The Tamyīz<sup>78</sup> is an Ism that is Manṣūb and clarifies what is vague as regards essences or entities, like when you say:

تَصَبَّبَ زَيْدٌ عَرَقًا _____ (Zayd is pouring sweat i.e. he is perspiring)

تَفَقَّأَ بَكْرٌ شَحْمًا _____ (Bakr expanded in fat)

طَابَ مُحَمَّدٌ نَفْسًا _____ (Muhammad is amicable in spirit)

اشْتَرَيْتُ عَشْرِينَ غَلَامًا _____ (I bought twenty servants)

مَلَكَتُ تِسْعِينَ نَعِجَةً _____ (I owned ninety ewes)

زَيْدٌ أَكْرَمُ مِنْكَ أَبًا وَأَجْمَلُ مِنْكَ وَجْهًا _____ (Zayd is more noble than you father-wise and more handsome than you face-wise)

It does not occur except as an Ism Nakirah and does not occur except after the completion of the Kalām.

The Chapter on the ISTITHNĀ'

79

The Ḥurūf<sup>80</sup> (particles) of alistithnā' (exception/exclusion) are eight, and they are:

إِلَّا	(except/save/excluding)
غَيْرِ	(other than)
سِوَى	(other than)
سِوَى	(other than)
سِوَاءِ	(other than)
خِلا	(except)
عِدا	(except)
حَاشَا	(except)

The Mustathnā by means of إِلَّا:

is Manṣūb when the Kalām is Tāmm (i.e. the Mustathnā minhu<sup>81</sup> is mentioned in the sentence) and Mūjab (i.e. positive, and not negated by a negative particle), like:

قَامَ الْقَوْمُ إِلَّا زَيْدًا (The people came except Zayd)

خَرَجَ النَّاسُ إِلَّا عَمْرًا (The people left/went out except 'Amr) and if the Kalām is Manfiyy (negative) and Tāmm, then there are the options of (1) Badal and (2) Naṣb by virtue Istithnā', like:

مَا قَامَ الْقَوْمُ إِلَّا زَيْدٌ وَإِلَّا زَيْدًا (The people stood except Zayd) and if the Kalām is Nāqīṣ (i.e. the Mustathnā minhu is not mentioned), then it is according to the 'Awāmīl (that precede it), like:

مَا قَامَ إِلَّا زَيْدٌ (No one stood except Zayd)

مَا رَأَيْتُ إِلَّا زَيْدًا (I did not see except Zayd)

مَا مَرَرْتُ إِلَّا بِزَيْدٍ (I did not pass except by Zayd)

The Mustathnā with غَيْرِ، سِوَى، سِوَاءِ and حَاشَا is Majrūr only and nothing else.

The Mustathnā with عِدا، خِلا and حَاشَا has the options of Naṣb and Jarr, like:

قَامَ الْقَوْمُ خِلا زَيْدًا وَزَيْدٍ، وَعِدا زَيْدًا وَزَيْدٍ، وَحَاشَا بَكْرًا وَبَكْرٍ (The people stood except Zayd and except Bakr)

The Chapter on "لا"

Know that "لا" declines Asmā' Nakirāt (indefinite nouns) according to Naṣb without a Tanwin when it is directly connected to the Ism Nakirah and "لا" is not repeated, like:

لا رجلٌ في الدار (There is absolutely no man in the house)

If it is not directly connected to it (i.e. the Ism Nakirah), then Raf' becomes incumbent as well as the repetition of "لا", like:

لا في الدار رجلٌ ولا امرأةٌ (There is no man and no woman in the house)

If it (i.e. "لا") is repeated it is permissible for it to be an 'Āmil (such that it performs the function of "إن") or Mulghāh (i.e. such that it loses that function thus becoming null and void).

Therefore, if you wish, you can say<sup>82</sup>:

لا رجلٌ في الدار ولا امرأةٌ (There is absolutely no man in the house and no woman) and if you wish, you can say:

لا رجلٌ في الدار ولا امرأةٌ

The Chapter on the MUNĀDĀ

The Munādā is of five types:

Mufrad ‘Alam (singular proper noun)

Nakirah Maqṣūdah (intended indefinite noun)

Nakirah Ghayr Maqṣūdah (unintended indefinite noun)

Muḍāf (annexed noun)

Mushabbahah bi al-Muḍāf (what resembles the annexed noun)

As for the Mufrad ‘Alam and the Nakirah Maqṣūdah, they are Mabniyy (indeclinable with or built) on the Ḍammah without Tanwīn, like:

يا زيد ويا رجل _____ (O Zayd and O Man)<sup>83</sup>

The remaining three are Manṣūb and nothing else<sup>84</sup>.

The Chapter on the MAF‘ŪL MIN AJLIHĪ

It is an Ism that is Manşūb<sup>85</sup> and is mentioned for the purpose of clarifying the cause for the occurrence of the action, like when you say:

قام زيد إجلالاً لعمرو (Zayd stood out of veneration for ‘Amr)

قصدتُك ابتغاءً معروفك (I sought you out of a desire for you goodness)

The Chapter on the MAF'ŪL MA'AHŪ

It is an Ism that is Manṣūb and is mentioned (in the sentence) for the purpose of clarifying the one in connection with whom the action is performed, like when you say:

جاء الأميرُ والجيشُ (The Commander came with the army)

استوى الماءُ والخشبةُ (The water became level with the stick/wood)

As for the Khabar of كان and its sisters and the Ism of إنَّ and its sisters, they have already been mentioned in (the Chapter on the Marfū'āt) and likewise the the Tawābi', they have already been dealt there.

The Chapter on the MAKHFŪDĀT AL-ASMĀ'

(the Places of Khafḍ/Jarr in the Ism)

The Makhfūdāt are of three types:

the Makhfūd by means of the Ḥarf

the Makhfūd by means Idāfah, and the Tābi.<sup>86</sup> of something that is Makhfūd.

As for the Makhfūd by means of the Ḥarf it is that which is Makhfūd by means of:

مِنْ	(مِنْكَ وَمِنْ نُوْحٍ) <sup>87</sup>
إِلَى	(وإِلَيْهِ تَرْجِعُونَ) (إِلَى اللَّهِ مَرْجِعَكُمْ جَمِيعًا) <sup>88</sup>
عَنْ	(رَضِيَ اللَّهُ عَنْهُمْ وَرَضُوا عَنْهُ) (رَضِيَ اللَّهُ عَنِ الْمُؤْمِنِينَ) <sup>89</sup>
عَلَى	(وَعَلَيْهَا وَعَلَى الْفُلْكِ تُحْمَلُونَ) <sup>90</sup>
فِي	(وَفِيهَا مَا تَشْتَهِي الْأَنْفُسُ) (وَفِي السَّمَاءِ رِزْقُكُمْ) <sup>91</sup>
رُبِّ	(رَبِّ رَجُلٍ صَالِحٍ لَقِيْتَهُمَا) <sup>92</sup>
الْبَاءِ	(أَوْلَئِكَ يُؤْمِنُونَ بِهِ) (قَوْلُوا آمَنَّا بِاللَّهِ) <sup>93</sup>
الْكَافِ	(لَيْسَ كَمِثْلِهِ شَيْءٌ) <sup>94</sup>
الْلَامِ	(وَلَهُمْ فِيهَا دَارُ الْخُلْدِ) (لِلَّهِ مَا فِي السَّمَاوَاتِ وَمَا فِي الْأَرْضِ) <sup>95</sup>

as well as the Ḥurūf of Oath, and they are:

الْوَاوِ	(وَاللَّهِ) <sup>96</sup>
الْبَاءِ	(بِاللَّهِ) <sup>97</sup>
التَّاءِ	(تَاللَّهِ) <sup>98</sup>

and (also) by means of:

مِنْ	(وَلِيْلٍ كَمَوْجِ الْبَحْرِ أَرْخَى سِدْوَلَهُ) (وَأَوْ "رُبِّ") <sup>99</sup>
مِنْ	(مَا رَأَيْتُهُ مِذْيَوْمِ الْجُمُعَةِ) (مَا رَأَيْتُهُ مِذْيَوْمِ نَا) <sup>100</sup>
مِنْ	(مَا رَأَيْتُهُ مِذْيَوْمِ الْجُمُعَةِ) (مَا رَأَيْتُهُ مِذْيَوْمِ نَا) <sup>101</sup>

As for that which is Makhfūd by means of Idāfah, it is like when you say:

غلام زيدٍ (Zayd's servant)

It is (furthermore) of two types<sup>102</sup>:

(1) that which is implied by means of the اللام, and

(2) that which is implied by means of مِنْ.

As for that which is implied by means of the اللام it is like:

غلام زيدٍ (Zayd's servant or the servant belonging to Zayd)

As for that which is implied by means of مِنْ (of the type) it is like:

ثوب نخري (a garment made of silk or silk garment)

باب ساج (a door made of teak/Indian oak)

خاتم حديد (a ring made of iron or an iron ring)

والحمد لله رب العالمين

Notes

1 It is customary for Arabic Grammarians to commence their Nahw works with a treatment of Kalām. The main reason for this is that Kalām is the goal that the study of Arabic Nahw aspires to. In other words, by following and applying the rules of Nahw the Arabic learner is able to produce Kalām in the same manner (nahw) as the ancient Arabs produced Kalām based on their natural and innate ability and competence. Nahw, then, is no more than the explication of rules which the ancient Arabs used and applied implicitly and on a subconscious level to produce Kalām. The primary motivation for the development of Nahw was the corruption of this very natural ability to produce grammatically well-formed sentences in the wake of a mass influx of foreigners from neighbouring countries. It was feared that if the Arabs lost this ability or it died with them then it would be lost forever which meant that the message and guidance of the Holy Qur'an would always be inaccessible to its readers.

Another equally valid reason for commencing with Kalām is that Kalām provides the context and creates the conditions for the occurrence of I'rāb (declinability) which forms the primary subject-matter of Nahw. In other words, Kalām, by virtue of it being a compound utterance, makes it possible for one word to precede another such that the former is able to change the ending of the latter. This very change that is effected at the endings of words is what the Arabic Grammarians call I'rāb. In fact, Nahw itself is occasionally referred to as 'Ilm al-I'rāb.

From the above it follows that Nahw is no more than a study of:

I'rāb, its types (Raf', Naṣb, Khafḍ and Jarr) as well as its opposite Binā' (indeclinability) and its types the declinable (Mu'rab) and indeclinable (Mabniyy) words that exist in Arabic and the categories and classes into which they are divided the various signs ('Alāmāt) with which the Mu'rab (in all its types) is declined and the signs on which the Mabniyy is fixed and established, and the places (Mawāḍi') in which the Mu'rab is so declined.

Furthermore, Nahw, and hence this present work, does not deal with the structure of the individual word and the changes (other than I'rāb) that affect its structure. This study of the word, instead, is treated under Ṣarf (Morphology) which, according to the later Grammarians, is an autonomous science independent of Nahw. However, this does not rule out the occasional treatment of Ṣarf in this work due to the fact that some aspects of Nahw are contingent on Ṣarf in that the latter furnishes the requisite background information for an adequate understanding of these aspects.

2 The word "compound" (Murakkab) refers to any utterance that is composed of two or more words whether it conveys a complete sense or not. The inclusion of Murakkab in the definition excludes the simple or single utterance (Lafz Mufrad) from the concept of Kalām. In other words, Kalām is not a simple or single utterance like: زيد (Zayd), قَامَ (stood), etc.

3 The word "utterance" (Lafz) denotes any sound that consists of some of the letters of the Alphabet whether it is actually used in Arabic (Musta'mal/Mauḍū') or not (Muhmal) and whether it is simple (Mufrad) or compound (Murakkab). The inclusion of Lafz in the definition excludes anything that is not uttered from the idea of Kalām like writing, sign-language, etc. Thus, every form of communication that does not involve speaking, or any non-verbal sign is excluded from the definition.

4 The expression "that conveys a complete and self-contained meaning" (Mufid) excludes the compound utterance that does not convey a complete and self-contained meaning (Murakkab Ghayr Mufid) e.g. هل زيدٌ (Is Zayd...?), إن قَامَ زيدٌ (If Zayd stands...), etc.

5 Bi al-Waḍ' has been variously interpreted to mean (a) according to Arabic usage as opposed to Turkish, English or Persian usage, for example, and (b) with the intention to communicate a message so as to exclude the "talking" of parrots and sleep-talkers for in none of the cases is there any intention to communicate a message.

6 The Ism is generally defined as a word that denotes a meaning that is complete in and by itself without time forming a part of that meaning. By “complete in and by itself” we mean that the meaning of the Ism can be completely understood independently and without reference to anything else. While Ism is equivalent to the Noun in English it is much wider in scope. The Ism in Arabic, apart from including words signifying concrete things such as people, animals, plants, inanimate objects, or abstract things such as actions, states, qualities, also includes English adjectives, adverbs, some prepositions, etc. This accounts for the initial confusion experienced by Arabic beginners when they are told that the following are nouns in Arabic: جميل (beautiful), قائم (is standing), مع (with), أمام (in front), خلف (behind), عند (at, with), etc.

As will be seen in the discussion of the signs of the Ism, the Fi’l and the Ḥarf, what determines a word to be an Ism, Fi’l or Ḥarf is the presence or absence of particular signs in the word rather than the meaning that it denotes. Thus, a word could have the meaning of a Fi’l but because it lacks the signs of the Fi’l it is regarded as an Ism instead. Likewise, a word could have the meaning of a Ḥarf but because it displays the signs of a Fi’l it is regarded as Fi’l.

7 The Fi’l is generally defined as a word that denotes a meaning (in the form of an action, state or quality) that is complete in and by itself with time being a part of it. Another way of defining the Fi’l is to say that it is a word signifying the occurrence of an action in one of the three tenses (Past, Present and Future i.e. before, during and after the time of speaking respectively).

8 The Ḥarf is generally defined as a word that denotes a meaning that is not complete in and by itself such that its meaning cannot be completely understood except with reference to an Ism or a Fi’l. It follows that the meaning of the Ḥarf is always relative such that it cannot be comprehended except with reference to words other than itself. The number of Ḥurūf that exist in Arabic is said to be eighty. The following are some of the meanings and usages associated with the Ḥarf:

Nafy (negation), Jawāb (responding), Tafsīr (explaining), Sharṭ (conditionality), Tahḏīd (urgent request), ‘Arḍ (mild request), Tanbīh (calling attention to something), Istiqbāl (marking the Future), Taukīd (emphasis), Istifhām (interrogation), Tamannī (expressing a wish), Tarajji and Ishfāq (expressing hope and pity), Tashbīh (comparison), Ta’līl (causality), Rad’ and Zajr (rebuke), Ta’niṭ (femininity), Sakt (pausing), Nidā’ (calling by way of address), Ṭalab (request in general), etc.

9 The reason for this qualification is to distinguish the word Ḥarf as a particle from the word Ḥarf as a letter of the Arabic alphabet. A letter is not used to signify a meaning i.e. it has no Semantic value. Instead, it is used as a unit in the construction of words. The two uses of the word Ḥarf are clearly illustrated in the following expression:

"مِنْ" حرف مكوّن من حرفين

[“Min” is a Ḥarf (particle) composed of two Ḥarfs (letters)]

10 Khafḍ, as will be mentioned in the Chapter on I’rāb, is a particular change at the end of a word in the form of a Kasrah, or one of its substitute signs (the Fathah and Ya’), caused by an ‘Āmil. Khafḍ occurs in three places viz:

- when a declinable Ism is preceded by a Ḥarf Jarr e.g.
- when it occurs as the Muḏāf ilayh e.g.
- when it occurs as a Tābi’ of one of the two previous cases e.g.

Each of these three places is illustrated in the Basmalah i.e. بِسْمِ اللّٰهِ الرَّحْمٰنِ الرَّحِیْمِ

Thus, the noun اسْمِ ends in a Kasrah because it is preceded by a Ḥarf Jarr, the Lafz al-Jalālah (i.e. the Expression of Majesty), viz. اللّٰهِ ends in a Kasrah because it is the Muḏāf ilayh and الرَّحْمٰنِ ends in a Kasrah because it is the Tābi’ of the Lafz al-Jalālah.

From the above it is clear that Khafḍ does not mean for a word to merely have a Kasrah at the end but that such a Kasrah should, in addition, be the result of an ‘Āmil’ such as a Ḥarf Jarr or Muḍāf ilayh. What this means is that a word may have a Kasrah at its end but because that Kasrah was not caused by an ‘Āmil’, it cannot be said to be Khafḍ.

Similarly, a word may be preceded by an ‘Āmil’ of Khafḍ (such as the Ḥarf Jarr or Muḍāf ilayh) but will not necessarily be marked with a Kasrah at its end (whether actually or hypothetically), due to the fact that the word might be Mabniyy (indeclinable). It is for this reason that the author mentions the Ḥurūf al-Khafḍ as an independent sign or marker of the Ism since by virtue of it a number of Mabniyy words have been classified under the category of Ism which might otherwise not have been classified as such.

Furthermore, Khafḍ is equivalent to the more commonly used term Jarr. The former is used by the Kufa school of Arabic grammar while the latter is used by the Basran school of Arabic grammar. From this it appears that the author inclines towards the Kufan school which is further corroborated by him subscribing to other Kufan views as will be seen later.

At this point it is in order to mention a brief note on the Arabic grammar schools. These schools resemble the four Madhabs in Fiqh but rather than being named after particular personalities the Arabic grammar schools have been named after the cities and countries in which they operated and were dominant. Of these schools the Basrah and Kufah schools have always dominated the Arabic grammar scene and of the two schools the views of the Basran school seem to be more in vogue. The famous Persian grammarian, Sībawayh, was Basran and his contemporary, Al-Kisā’iyy, one of the Seven Qurra’ (Readers), was a representative of the Kufan Arabic school.

11 The Tanwīn is defined as a Nūn Sākinah (unvowelled Nūn) suffixed to Asmā’ which even though it is pronounced as a Nūn Sākinah is not written as one but rather as “the second of two Ḥarakahs” i.e. the second of two Ḍammahs, two Faṭḥahs or two Kasrahs e.g.

Raruluḅ - Rajulān - Rajulīn

رجلٌ ، رجلاً ،

رجلٍ

The use of the phrase “the second of two Ḥarakahs” to refer to the Tanwīn is metaphorical since a Ḥarakah does not really and literally give the sound of a Nūn Sākinah.

Moreover, it is commonly believed that the Tanwīn constitutes both Ḥarakahs (vowel markings) but this belief is erroneous for the following reasons:

Two Ḍammahs, two Faṭḥahs or two Kasrahs are pronounced as uḅ, aḅ, or iḅ respectively, that is, a Ḥarakah (u, a, i) plus a Nūn Sākinah (ḅ), whereas the Tanwīn is pronounced as ḅ which is a Nūn Sākinah only. Moreover, the way these two Ḥarakahs are pronounced is أُ أُ and إِ (i.e. ’uḅ, ’aḅ, and ’iḅ) in which case they do not consist merely of a Ḥarakah (u, a, i) and a Nūn Sākinah (ḅ) but also a Hamzah (’). In other words, not only is it erroneous to say that the Tanwīn constitutes both Ḥarakahs but to pronounce the two Ḥarakahs as though they are borne on a Hamzah is even more erroneous.

It is known that the Tanwīn is dropped from an Ism when the definite article “al” is prefixed to it since the two cannot co-exist on one Ism. However, when “al” is added only one of the two Ḥarakahs is dropped and not both. For example, we say before the prefixing of “al”: كتابٌ (Kitābuḅ) and after its prefixing: الكتابُ (al-Kitābu). Note that only the ḅ is dropped and not uḅ as a whole.

It is also known that the Tanwīn of the Muḍāf (annexed noun) is also dropped such that the word كتابٌ (Kitābu) in كتابٌ زيدٍ (Kitābu Zaydin) was كتابُ (Kitābuḅ) prior to it becoming the Muḍāf. Again we find that only the ḅ is dropped and not the uḅ which attests to the Tanwīn being only one of the two Ḥarakahs and not both.

The only time that the Tanwīn is dropped together with the Ḥarakah is when a pause is made on a word. Thus, in the case of كتاب (Kitābuḥ) when we pause on it we say: كتاب (Kitāb) such that not only is the ḥ dropped but uḥ as a whole. A possible reason for the belief that the Tanwīn constitutes both Ḥarakahs is that the Tanwīn when it is pronounced it is always pronounced with the particular Ḥarakah preceding it. In other words, while the preceding Ḥarakah can exist without the Tanwīn the Tanwīn cannot exist without the preceding Ḥarakah.

What this amounts to is that a Ḥarakah cannot be a Tanwīn and give the sound of ḥ except when it is written with another Ḥarakah, because if the Tanwīn is distinguished by being the second of two Ḥarakahs it cannot be the second without another Ḥarakah being the first. The moment a Ḥarakah appears alone it always gives the sound of Ḥarakah in the real sense of the word, i.e. a Ḍammah (u), Fathah (a) or Kasrah (i) and not that of the Tanwīn. Since the “Ḥarakah” indicating the Tanwīn cannot appear alone and must out of necessity appear with another Ḥarakah it is more convenient – especially for beginners – to refer to both Ḥarakahs as the Tanwīn. However, this is technically incorrect and has to be unlearned eventually as it will hamper a correct understanding of more advanced Arabic concepts.

A final point on the Tanwīn is that when it is the second of two Fathahs it is transformed into an Alif when pausing on the word such that the sound of the Fathah is prolonged. This is the reason why a word with a double Fathah is almost always written with an Alif at its end. Thus, كتاباً (Kitābaḥ) becomes كتاباً (Kitābā) when a pause is performed. An exception to this rule is the Ta’ Marbūṭah

12 A more detailed explanation of the Ḥurūf al-Khafḍ/al-Jarr will be provided later in the Chapter on the Makhfūḍat al-Asmā’ (places of Khafḍ in the Ism) since the author merely mentions them here as one of the characteristics of the Ism such that when one of them precedes a word directly then that word is an Ism. Thus, each of the underlined words in the examples given above is an Ism because it is preceded by a Ḥarf Khafḍ/Jarr.

13 The author does not give any examples for the Ḥurūf al-Jarr which is why I thought it appropriate to give examples so as to clarify the meanings and illustrate their operation and effect on the Ism. I have placed the examples between brackets to indicate that they are not part of the text.

14 The author mentions the Ḥurūf al-Qasam separately from the Ḥurūf al-Khafḍ/Jarr even though they form part of the Ḥurūf al-Khafḍ/Jarr to emphasise the point that only these three Ḥurūf are used to indicate Qasam.

15 The function of this Tā’ is to indicate that the Fā’il (and other similar structures) to whose Fi’l it is suffixed, is feminine. Furthermore, the author’s qualification of “unvowelled” (السائكة) is to distinguish the تاء التانيث السائكة from the تاء التانيث المتحركة (“vowelled” Tā’ of Femininity) which is suffixed to the Ism in the form of the Tā’ Marbūṭah (closed Tā’ or Tā’ whose ends are joined) e.g. مدرسة (a female teacher), مسلمة (a female Muslim). Even though the تاء التانيث السائكة is unvowelled as its name indicates it nevertheless becomes vowelled when the letter following it is also unvowelled. The reason why it is vowelled in this case is to avoid the meeting of two unvowelled letters which Arabs found difficult to pronounce e.g. جاءت المدرستان وجلستا في الفصل (“The two female teachers came and sat in the classroom”). In the first case the Tā’ is followed by the unvowelled Lam (since the Hamzah Wasl is to be ignored during continuous speech) and in the second case it is followed by an Alif (the Alif of Iṭnatayn – feminine dual) which is always unvowelled.

16 In other words, the Ḥarf does not feature any of the signs of the Ism and the Fi’l such that the absence of a nominal or verbal sign is what marks and characterizes the Ḥarf and distinguishes it from the Ism and Fi'l. The Ḥarf can be equated with the letter ح which is distinguished from the ج and the خ by the absence of a dot under or above it.

<sup>17</sup> The author uses I'rāb here in the sense of declinability in contrast to Binā' (indeclinability) which is when the ending of word permanently exists in a particular state despite the entry of different 'Awāmil. In short, the difference between I'rāb and Binā' is that the former is a process involving change and the latter a state involving permanence and stability. Furthermore, while the author covers I'rāb quite extensively in this brief treatise, he does not deal with Binā' at all. The reason for this is that I'rāb involves complex changes and permutations affecting different word-types in different contexts and environments all of which requires explanation and clarification. Binā', on the other hand, involves minimal change if any at all such that not much can be said about it and can therefore be dispensed with as the author has done here.

Moreover, as mentioned before, I'rāb refers to a process of change and Binā' to a fixed state. On the other, the word whose ending is subject to change is called Mu'rāb and the word whose ending occurs in a fixed state is called Mabniyy. An example of a word that is Mu'rāb is the Ism المدرس in the following three sentences:

جاء المدرسُ (The teacher came)

سألت المدرسَ (I asked the teacher)

سلمت المدرسَ (I greeted the teacher)

An example of a word that is Mabniyy is the Ism هؤلاء in the following three sentences:

جاء هؤلاء [These (people) came]

سألت هؤلاء [I asked these (people)]

سلمت على هؤلاء [I greeted these (people)]

Notice in the first set of examples how the ending of المدرس which is the Sīm, first changes to a Ḍammah, then to a Fathah and then to a Kasrah while in the second set of examples the ending of هؤلاء which is the second Hamzah, remains fixed with a Kasrah even though both words occur in the exact same context and environment.

The term "I'rāb" is also used to mean syntactic analysis (or parsing) where a sentence is broken up into its constituent parts (the words) and analysed according to word-type or word-class, place of I'rāb, sign of I'rāb or Binā', whether real (Ḍāhir) or hypothetical (Muqaddar), etc. Once the constituent parts have been analysed the Mu'rāb (Syntactic Analyst) moves on to the level of the sentence (Jumlah). Here he isolates all the possible sentences and states whether or not they occupy particular places of I'rāb by standing in place of the Asmā' and Af'al that normally occupy those places.

<sup>18</sup> The purpose of I'rāb is to distinguish between different grammatical functions and roles such as the Doer, Object, Subject, Predicate, Adverb, etc., which come into existence with the production of Kalām. In English these grammatical functions and roles are determined from the word-order. English has an SVO word-order i.e. Subject-Verb-Object word-order. Thus, in English you say "Zayd hit Bakr" in this order to indicate that 'Zayd' is the Subject, 'hit' the Verb and 'Bakr' the Object. If we were to reverse the order and say "Bakr hit Zayd" then 'Bakr' would be the Subject and 'Zayd' the Object. In Arabic it does not matter in which order these three words occur the Subject will always be the noun ending in a Ḍammah and the Object the noun ending in a Fathah. Thus, in each of the following sentences ‘Zayd’ is the Subject (whether of a verbal or nominal sentence) and ‘Bakr’ the Object:

ضَرَبَ زَيْدٌ بَكْرًا	VSO	ضَرَبَ بَكْرًا زَيْدٌ	VOS
زَيْدٌ ضَرَبَ بَكْرًا	SVO	بَكْرًا ضَرَبَ زَيْدٌ	OVS

Hence, because of I’rāb Arabic has a flexible word-order as can be seen from the aforementioned examples while in English the word-order is fixed.

19 I’rāb only features in the Ism and the Fi’l and not in the Ḥarf. Moreover, in the case of the Ism it generally does not apply to the Ḍamīr (personal pronoun), Ism al-Ishārah (demonstrative/indicative pronoun), Ism Mauṣūl (relative pronoun), Ism Alistifhām (interrogative pronoun), compound numbers from eleven until nineteen, some types of Ḍarf (adverb), etc. As for the Fi’l, I’rāb does not feature in the Māḍī, Amr and the Muḍāri’ that has the Nūn an-Niswah/al-Ināṭ (Nun of the Feminine Plural) or the Nūn al-Taūkīd (Nūn of Corroboration) suffixed to it.

Furthermore, the author treats of I’rāb generally i.e. he deals with the I’rāb of the Ism and the Fi’l together rather than separately. The advantage of this method from a didactic point of view is that the learner does not have to wait for the completion of the I’rāb of one word-type like the Ism, for example, before he can proceed with the I’rāb of the Fi’l, and so on. The disadvantage, however, is that the learner has to deal with two distinct word-types/parts of speech at the same time and this might be confusing to the beginner.

20 ‘Awāmil is the plural of ‘Āmil which refers to any word that causes the ending of another word to change in the sense described above. The word that undergoes the change is called the Ma’mūl (fihī) and the change itself the ‘Amal (which is synonymous with I’rāb). In the examples mentioned in footnote (17) the words جاء ، سأل ، and على constitute the ‘Āmil and the words المدرس and هؤلاء the Ma’mūl and the changes with the Ḍammah, the Fathah and the Kasrah at the end of المدرس the ‘Amal. Even though هؤلاء does not feature any particular change at its ending it is still regarded as a Ma’mūl because the places that it occupies, namely, the Fa’il, Maf’ūl bihī and Masbūq bi Ḥarf Jarr, are governed by the ‘Awāmil such that their effect is distributed over هؤلاء as a whole without the change having to be noticeable. In other words, it is not necessary for a word to undergo a change at its ending in order for it to be a Ma’mūl but that it is sufficient that it only occupies a place governed by an ‘Āmil like هؤلاء .

21 Taqḍīran simply means that there is a change at the ending of the word but something prevents this change from being pronounced or uttered like (a) when it is difficult (al-Tiqal) for the Ḍammah and Kasrah to be pronounced on the Wāw or Yā’ or (b) when it is impossible (al-Ta’aḍḍur) for the Alif to be vowelled with any of the three vowels (Ḍammah, Fathah and Kasrah) since the Alif is always unvowelled (i.e. it always bears a Sukūn) or (c) when the Yā’ al-Mutakillim (the Yā’ of the first person singular) forces a Kasrah on the letter before it due to correspondence (al-Munāsabah) and thus preventing the appearance of the Ḥarakah of I’rāb on that letter.

Furthermore, some Grammarians add the stipulation Maḥallan to the present definition to point to the fact that a Mabniyy word even though it does not display any change at its ending whether Lafdan or Taqḍīran, the effect of I’rāb is distributed over the whole word such that the whole word occupies a particular Maḥall (place/location) of I’rāb. Therefore, in the case of I’rāb Lafdan and Taqḍīran the effect is confined to the end of the word whereas in the case of I’rāb Maḥallan the effect is distributed over the word as a whole.

22 The Ism in Arabic from the perspective of number is of three types: Mufrad (singular) Muṭannā (dual i.e. two) and Jam’ (plural i.e. three and more). The Jam’ is further divided into Jam’ Taṣḥīḥ/Salāmah (sound plural i.e. the singular form remains intact when the plural is formed) and Jam’ Taksīr (broken plural i.e. the singular form undergoes a change when the plural is formed e.g. كُتِبَ → كُتِبَ ). The former is, furthermore, sub-divided into Jam’ Mudakkar Sālim [sound masculine plural i.e. the mere addition of يُنِّ / مُؤَنَّ (-ūna/-īna) at the end of the singular form e.g. مدرِّس →

مدرِّسُون / مدرِّسُون / مدرِّسُونِين ] and Jam' Mu'annath Sālim [sound feminine plural i.e. the mere addition of تَات / تَاتُ (-ātun/-ātin) at the end of the singular form after dropping the Tā' Marbūṭah e.g. مدرِّسة → مدرِّساتُ]. In addition, both the Mufrad and the Jam'

Taksir are either Munṣarif (fully-declinable/triptote i.e. it is able to go from the Ḍammah to the Kasrah in its declension from Raf' to Jarr) or Ghayr Munṣarif (semi-declinable/diptote i.e. it only goes as far as the Faṭḥah in its declension such that the Faṭḥah which is the regular sign of Naṣb is retained and used as a sign of Jarr as well).

23 This refers to the Muḏāri' that does not have the following appendages suffixed to them:

the Nūn al-Taūkīd (Nūn of Corroboration), in which case it is Mabniyy on the Faṭḥah:

يَكْتَبَنَّ / يَكْتَبَنَّ and تَكْتَبَنَّ / تَكْتَبَنَّ

the Nūn al-Niswah/al-Ināṭ (Nūn of the feminine plural), in which case it is Mabniyy on a Sukūn: يَكْتَبَنَّ / يَكْتَبَنَّ

the Alif al-Iṭṭayn (Alif of duality), the Wāw al-Jamā-'ah (Wāw of masculine plural) and Yā' al-Mukhāṭabah (Yā' of the second person feminine singular), in which case it is Mu'rab with the fixing of the in in the case of Raf', and the dropping of the in in the case of Naṣb and Jazm, and is referred to as the al-Amṣilah/al-Af'āl Khamsah (five patterns/verbs):

يُفَعِّلَانِ، يُفَعِّلَانِ، يُفَعِّلَانِ، يُفَعِّلَانِ، يُفَعِّلَانِ، يُفَعِّلَانِ

24 Some grammarians add هنوك (your thing) as a sixth one, but the more correct view is that it has the I'rab (declension) of the Ism Mufrad.

25 The term Nāṣib, even though it can refer to anything that can serve as an 'Āmil of Naṣb, its usage has nevertheless been restricted to refer to a member of a set of particles that make the Fi'l the Maṣṣūb collectively called the Nawaṣib (sing. Nā'ib). These particles are dealt with in the Chapter of the Af'āl.

26 The al-Ism alladī lā yaṣharifu – also referred to as the Mamnū' min al-Ṣarf and the Ism Ghayr Munṣarif – is an Ism Mufrad or Jam' Taksir that is debarred from the Tanwīn in its normal state (i.e. when it does not have the definite article "ال" prefixed to it). This is the case in the following four categories of Ism:

Any 'Alam (proper noun) when it is one of the following: (a) feminine (عائشة، حمزة) (b) foreign (إبراهيم، يوسف) (c) mixed compound (حضرموت، بيتلحم) (d) ends in additional Alif and Nūn (عثمان، لقمان) (e) occurs on a pattern specific to verbs (أحمد، يعمر) and (f) occurs on the pattern of فُعَل (عُمَر، زُفَر)

Any Ṣifah (descriptive noun) when it is one of the following: (a) ends in an additional Alif and Nūn (أحسن، أحمر) (b) occurs on a pattern specific to the Fi'l (عطشان، جوعان) and (c) occurs on the pattern of فُعَال or مَفْعَل (مُثَي، ثَلَاث، زُبَاع)

Any Ism ending with the Alif al-Ta'nīṭ (Alif indicating femininity) (حَسَنِي، حَسَنَاء، مَرَضِي، عُلَمَاء)

Any Jam' whose third letter is an additional letter followed by either two letters or three letters the middle one being a Ḥarf Madd and is called the Ṣiḡḡah Muntahā al-Jumū' or al-Jam' al-Aqṣā (final/extreme plural) (مَسَاجِد، مَفَاتِيح، دَرَاهِم، دَنَانِير، كُسَالِي، عَطَايَا)

27 The Sukūn, even though it is not a Ḥarakah, is nevertheless included under the general term Ḥarakāt. Here the use of the word Ḥarakāt to include the Sukūn is an instance of the use of a word that signifies the majority (i.e. the Ḍammah, Faṭḥah and Kasrah) to include the minority (i.e. the Sukūn). Another reason that warrants the use of the word Ḥarakāt in the afore mentioned sense is the fact that the Sukūn is the opposite of Ḥarakah and is sometimes referred to as Ḥadf al-Ḥarakah (the dropping of the Ḥarakah) so that the word Ḥarakāt signifies the three Ḥarakāt as well as their opposite, the Sukūn.

28 These vowels are the Ḍammah, Faṭḥah, Kasrah and Ḥazf al-Ḥarakah (omission of the vowel) which is the Sukūn. Technically speaking the Sukūn is not a vowel but because it stands for the absence of one it has been included under the term Ḥarakāt in this case. Furthermore, these Ḥarakāt are equivalent to your English short vowels.

29 These Ḥurūf are the Wāw, Alif, Yā' and Nūn (its attachment and detachment), the first three lengthening the Ḍammah, Faṭḥah and Kasrah respectively to correspond to your long vowels in English. Furthermore, the Yā' preceded by a Faṭḥah in the Muṭanna in the case of Naṣb and Jarr corresponds to the English diphthong [ai]. A diphthong is a combination of two vowels which in this case are the [a] and [i] as is clear from the way in which it is represented, viz. [ai]. The opposite of a diphthong is a monophthong which is a single vowel. On the other, the appropriateness of the Nūn as a sign of declension together with the Wāw, Alif and Yā' is the fact it is often interchanged with one of these letters especially the Alif like when the Alif replaces the Nūn in the form of a Tanwīn when pausing on a word ending in a Faṭḥah Tanwīn.

30 In order for these Asmā' to be declined with a Wāw for Raf', an Alif for Naṣb and a Yā' for Jarr the following conditions have to be met:

they have to be Mufrad and not Muṭannā or Jam'

they have to be Mukabbar (i.e. non-diminutive) and not Muṣagh-ghar (diminutive)

they have to be Muḍāf (annexed)

they have to be Muḍāf to other than the Yā' al-Mutakallim (Yā' of the first person singular)

In addition to these four conditions, (ذو) has to have the meaning of (صاحب) (possessor/owner of) and not be a relative pronoun (Ism Mauṣūl) according to the dialect of Tay' and (القم) has to have its Mīm dropped.

31 What is meant by the "Five Verbs" is not that they consist of five verbs only nor that they occur only on the scales of the five verbs mentioned in the text but rather any Muḍāri' that has the Alif of the Dual, the Wāw of the Masculine Plural or the Yā' of the Second Person Feminine Singular suffixed to it whether it occurs on the scales mentioned in the text or not. Hence, the verb could be Mujarrad or Mazīd, Ṣaḥīḥ (Strong) or Mu'tall (Weak), Ma'lūm (Active) or Majhūl (Passive), etc.

32 The Yā' that is preceded by a Faṭḥah and followed by a Kasrah (as opposed to the Yā' of the Muṭanna). See next footnote.

33 The Yā' that is preceded by a Kasrah and followed by a Faṭḥah (as opposed to the Yā' of the Jam' Mudakkar Salim). See previous footnote.

34 Strictly speaking, the Fi'l constitutes only the part highlighted in red. It is therefore wrong to translate the Fi'l كَتَبَ as "he wrote" but rather as "wrote" or "writing in the past".

The reason for this is that "he wrote" is the translation of a complete sentence namely: كَتَبَ (هُوَ) i.e. the Fi'l together with the Damīr that is normally dormant or latent in it when used in speech. Another reason is that we have defined a Fi'l as a "word that signifies the occurrence of an action in one of the three tenses" and nowhere is it mentioned that the Damīr is part of its meaning.

35 It does not matter whether the Fathah is Ḍāhirah (verbally expressed) or Muqaddarah (conceived in the mind only) such that even if the Fathah does not appear to be physically present in speech it is nevertheless assumed to be present. This is the case when the Wāw al-Jamā'ah or Ḍamīr Raf' Mutaharrik are suffixed to the Fi'l. In the case of the Wāw al-Jamā'ah the Fi'l appears to be Mabniyy on a Ḍammah – which is not really the case. The Ḍammah is merely there because of its correspondence with the Wāw al-Jamā'ah other wise the Fi'l is still Mabniyy on the Fathah which has only temporarily been driven and forced out by the Ḍammah which is required by the Wāw al-Jamā'ah for the sake of correspondence. In the case of the Ḍamīr Raf' Mutaharrik the Fi'l appears to be Mabniyy on a Sukūn which is not actually the case. The Sukūn is only there so as to break the sequence of four consecutive vowelised letters in what is considered to be a single word since because Arabic does not contain four-letter words all of which are vowelised. The Fi'l already consists of three vowelised letters and with the suffixing of the Ḍamīr Raf' Mutaharrik – which together with the Fi'l is regarded as one word – it now consists of four vowelised letters each following in succession. To break this succession of vowels the Fathah on the final letter of the Fi'l is dropped and replaced with a Sukūn. The Sukūn, therefore, is merely there to break the succession of four consecutive vowels otherwise the Fi'l still remains Mabniyy on the Fathah which has temporarily been dropped due to the aforementioned reason.

There is also the view – which is easier for beginners – that maintains that the Fi'l is actually Mabniyy on the Ḍammah or Sukūn in the case of – for example – ضربوا and ضربت respectively, and not on an implied or assumed Fathah.

36 The view that the Amr is Majzūm is Kufan since the Basran view is that it is Mabniyy (fixed) on the sign with which the Muḍāri' is Majzūm. This, furthermore, reiterates the view that the author had certain Kufan leanings. The Amr – based on this view – does not constitute a separate category of the Fi'l but instead is a Fi'l Muḍāri' which is Majzūm with the Lām al-Amr. Due to excessive use the Lām was then dropped and likewise the Tā' of al-Muḍāra'ah (i.e. the Tā' which causes the Fi'l to become Muḍāri'). If the Fi'l then commences with a Sākin (unvowelised letter) a Hamzah al-Waṣl is introduced to enable the pronunciation of the Sākin except the Fourth Form أفعل in which case its original Hamzah al-Qaṭ' is restored.

37 These letters are called the Aḥruf al-Muḍāra'ah as they cause the Fi'l to become Muḍāri'. Furthermore, they are vowelised with a Ḍammah if the Fi'l consists of four letters or it is in the Majhūl (passive) form other wise they are vowelised with a Fathah. In addition, the Alif is used for the first person singular, the Nūn for the first person plural (or singular but used in the royal sense), the Yā' for the third person masculine (singular, dual and plural) and the third person feminine plural and the Tā' for the second person throughout (i.e. masculine and feminine, singular, dual and plural) and the third person feminine singular and dual.

38 The actual, Nawāṣib, according to the Basran school, are the first four. The remaining six, according to the them, do not effect Naṣb by themselves but rather via the particle "ان" that is assumed to be hidden after them. The reason for this assumption is to maintain a uniform and single function for these six particles such that if they perform a particular function in one context then that function should be maintained in other contexts for the purpose of uniformity and simplicity. Thus, the two lams as well as Hattā function normally as Ḥurūf al-Jarr and should therefore continue to do so even in this context. It is not acceptable that they should perform the function of Jarr in one context and then that of Naṣb in another context while at the same the meaning in both contexts is also constant. Likewise the Fā', Wāw and Au function normally as Ḥurūf al-'Aṭf and should therefore retain this function even in this context.

The view that these particles effect Naṣb by themselves is the view of the Kufans in which case the number of Nawāṣib of the Fi'l is ten. This furthermore attests to the author's Kufan leanings on some issues of Naḥw.

40 For the Fi'l to be Manṣūb after the Fā' or the Wāw they have to be preceded by Nafy (negation) or Ṭalab [a request which comprises the following: Amr (command), Nahy (prohibition), Tahḏīq (urgent request), 'Arḏ (mild/gentle request), Du'a' (supplication), Istifhām (interrogation/questioning), Rajā' (hoping) and Tamannī (wishing)]

41 For the Fi'l to be Manṣūb after أُو the latter has to convey the meaning of either إلى (until) or إلا (except).

42 The author states that the Jawāzim are eighteen in number but yet goes on to enumerate nineteen. The reason for this is that – strictly speaking – is not a Jāzim since it only effects Jazm in a particular context, namely, that of poetry and the Jawāzim that the author meant are those that effect Jazm in all contexts – whether poetry or prose. By right أَلَمْ and أَلَمَّا should not constitute two separate instruments of Jazm since they – in reality – composed of لَمْ and لَمَّا preceded by the Hamzah alistifhām (Hamzah of interrogation) which brings the total number of Jawāzim to sixteen instead of the original eighteen. Furthermore, the Basrans do not count the كيفما as a Jāzim in which the number of Jawāzim totals to fifteen.

In addition, the Jawāzim are of two groups. The first group only effects Jāzm of one Fi'l and comprises the following particles: (لَمْ، لَمَّا، لام الأمر والدعاء، لا للنهي والدعاء). The second group effects Jazm of two Fi'ls, the first of which is called the Fi'l al-Sharṭ (verb signifying the condition) and the second the Jawāb al-Sharṭ (the compliment/response to the condition) or Jazā' al-Sharṭ (the result/consequence of the condition), and constitutes the remaining Adawāt (instruments). The reason for referring to the latter as Adawāt is the fact that they comprise both Ḥurūf (particles) and Asmā' (nouns). The Ḥurūf are: (أَنْ،) (إِذْمَا) and the remaining words are Asmā'. The Asmā' can be identified by the fact that they denote a meaning over and above mere al-Sharṭiyyah (conditionality), such as: rational or non-rational beings, time, place, state, etc., in addition to having Ḍamā'ir (personal pronouns) referring to them. Obviously, being Asmā' one has to account for their places of al-I'rāb in the sentence.

43 What the author means by Marfū'āt al-Asmā' are all those categories of Asmā' that are Marfū' whether Lafḏan (verbally), Taqḏīran (hypothetically/conceptually) or Maḥallan (locally/place-wise). Lafḏan is where the particular sign of I'rāb (which in this case is the Ḍammah, Wāw or Alif) is verbally expressed, Taqḏīran where it is not verbally expressed but supposed in the mind, and Maḥallan where there is no sign of I'rāb because the word is Mabniyy. In the latter case the particular I'rāb (which in this case is Raf') is distributed over the whole word as it were in the form of the word occupying – as a whole – the particular place of I'rāb (and hence the term Maḥallan – place) which is here a place of Raf' as the Fā'il, Mubtada', Khabar, etc. In the previous two cases only the word-endings are involved whereas in this case the whole word is involved.

It is customary for Grammarians to treat the Marfū'āt al-Asmā' first, the Manṣūbāt al-Asmā' second and the Makhfūḏāt al-Asmā' last. The rationale behind this order is that Marfū'āt al-Asmā' constitute the essential and indispensable components or elements of Kalam (speech). The Manṣūbāt al-Asmā' are non-essential to Kalām and therefore dispensable (with the exception of the Khabar of Kāna and Ism of Inna and their sisters). As for the Makhfūḏāt al-Asmā' they really belong to the Manṣūbāt al-Asmā' because they are Manṣūb from the point of view of place (Maḥall). Thus, the Jārr and Majrūr-phrase (بالقلم) in the sentence كُتِبْتُ بِالْقَلَمِ (I wrote with the pen) occupies the same position as the ماف'ūl bihī (الرسالة) in the sentence كُتِبْتُ الرِّسَالَةَ (I wrote the letter). Also, the Maf'ul bihī can be paraphrased as a Jārr and Majrūr-phrase, namely: فعلتُ الكتابة

بالرسالة (I did writing to the letter) which constitutes further proof of the resemblance of the Makhfūdāt al-Asmā' to the Manṣūbāt al-Asmā'. In addition, the Jārr and Majrūr-phrase takes the place of the Fa'il after the latter has been dropped just as the Maf'ul bihī does becoming the Nā'ib Fa'il. This would not have been the case if the Jārr and Majrūr-phrase did not occupy a place of Naṣb.

44 The diversity of the examples used by the author here indicates that the Fa'il can be singular, dual or plural (sound or broken), masculine or feminine, a noun with real or hypothetical declension. The use of the Māḍī and Muḍāri' forms of the Fi'l indicates that the Ḍāhir is only used with these two verb types because the Ḍāhir falls in the category of the third person and the Amr comprises the second person only and therefore cannot have the Ḍāhir as its Fa'il.

45 These are only the Fa'il-Ḍamā'ir for the Māḍī. If we include the Muḍāri' and the Amr then the following Fa'il-Ḍamā'ir can be added: the Yā' al-Mukhāṭabah in {أضرب} (تضربين، اضربي) and the three latent or hidden Ḍamā'ir (i.e. Mustatirah) in {أضرب} (أنا، تضرب نحن، تضرب أنت، اضرب أنت).

46 Notice that the Māḍī form ضَرَبْتَا [They (fem. dual) hit] is not mentioned here because the author's intention here is not to give the conjugation of the Fi'l (which falls under Sarf rather than Naḥw) but merely to enumerate the Fa'il in the form of Ḍamā'ir which so happen to be suffixed to the Fi'l. Now, since the Fa'il in ضَرَبَ [They (masc. dual) hit] which is the Alif is same (at least in form) as the Fa'il in ضَرَبْتَا [They (fem. dual) hit], there is no sense in repeating it if the one suffices. As for the Tā' in ضَرَبْتَا it is the unvowelled Tā' of Femininity which has been vowelled with a Faṭḥah because of the Alif following it. This Tā', therefore, is not part of the Alif so as to make it different from the Alif in the masculine form ضَرَبَ such that they constitute two separate Fa'ילים and therefore necessitating the inclusion of the feminine form ضَرَبْتَا.

47 It is also called the Nā'ib Fa'il (Deputy Doer/Agent of the Doer) which is more preferred because the technical term used by the author does not exclude the second of two Maf'uls when the first becomes the Nā'ib Fa'il for each of the two Maf'uls qualifies as a al-Maf'ul alladī lam yusamma Fa'iluhū. Yet the one Maf'ul is Marfū' and the other Manṣūb and what the author means by this term is the one that is Marfū' on taking the place of the dropped Fa'il.

48 In fact, all vowelled letters before the penultimate letter are marked with a Ḍammah and not only the first. Furthermore, if the Fi'l is Ajwaf (hollow) with the Alif as the middle weak letter then the Alif is transformed into a Yā' and the letter before it bears a Kasrah, e.g. (قال - قِيْل، باع - بِيْع).

49 Not only is the letter before the final letter marked with a Faṭḥah but all vowelled letters before it. Furthermore, if the Fi'l is Ajwaf (hollow) with the Wāw or Yā' as the weak middle, then the Wāw or Yā' is transformed into an Alif e.g. (يقُول - يُقَال، يبِيْع - يُباع).

50 The Mubtada' is Marfū' and as such it must be acted on by an 'Āmil that makes it Marfū' since every change in the form of I'rāb is the result of an 'Āmil. However, since the Mubtada' normally is the first word in the nominal sentence it follows that its 'Āmil' cannot be anything verbally expressed (Lafziyy) for there is nothing before the Mubtada'. It is for this reason that some Grammarians maintain the Mubtada' is Marfū' precisely because it is not preceded by verbally expressed 'Awāmil' which in itself constitutes an 'Āmil' albeit an 'Āmil' that is supposed or conceived in the mind (Ma'nawiyy). This 'Āmil' is called alibtidā' (inception i.e. to be stripped of verbally expressed 'Awāmil' by virtue of it occurring at the beginning).

53 This definition of the Na't covers both the Na't Haqīqiyy and Na't Sababiyy. The Na't Haqīqiyy is that which highlights a quality or attribute in the Man'ūt itself and further agrees with the Man'ūt in number and gender e.g. هذا بستان جميل (This is a beautiful garden). The Na't Sababiyy, on the other hand, highlights a quality or attribute in something related to the Man'ūt (called the Sabab) and not in the actual Man'ūt itself e.g. هذا بستان جميلة أزهارها (This is a garden whose flowers are beautiful). Notice that in the first example جميل highlights the quality of beauty (جمال) in the Man'ūt بستان and furthermore agrees with it in Raf', Tankīr, Ifrād and Taḍkīr. As for the second example جميلة highlights the quality of beauty (جمال) in the Sabab أزهارها (its flowers) which is related to the Man'ūt بستان and only agrees with the Man'ūt in Raf' and Tankīr. As for gender and number the Na't is Mu'annath because the Sabab is Mu'annath and is always Mufrad.

54 The Mubham includes the Ism Mauṣūl (relative pronoun) e.g. الذي [who/that which (masc. sing.)], التي [who/that which fem. sing.] and الذين [who/those whom (masc. pl.)].

55 Examples of this category are: كتابي (my book), كتاب زيد (Zayd's book), كتاب هذا الطالب (this student's book) and كتاب الرجل (the man's book).

56 What is meant by "some places" is that حتى is not a Ḥarf 'Aṭf in every context but that in some contexts it is a Ḥarf 'Aṭf, in others a Ḥarf Jarr and yet others a Ḥarf Ibtidā' (particle of inception). The following example illustrates the differences between the three types of حتى : (أكلت السمكة حتى رأسها، رأسها، رأسها) (I ate the fish up to or up to including its head). If we read رأسها with Jarr then حتى is a Ḥarf Jarr, with Naṣb it is a Ḥarf 'Aṭf for then رأسها follows the same I'rāb as السمكة , and with Raf' it is Ḥarf Ibtidā' in which case رأسها is the Mubtada' and its Khabar is dropped assumed as: مأكول (i.e. Even its head was eaten).

57 This example does not constitute a proper example of a Fi'l Majzūm conjoined to another Fi'l Majzūm since the second is not much Majzūm by virtue of it following the first or even by the 'Āmil' of the first but rather it is Majzūm because of the negative particle of Jazm, Lām, that immediately precedes it. To make it an example of a Majzām conjoined to a Majzūm the second Lām should be dropped, like: زيد لم يقم ويقعد .

58 The term Taukid here is a Maṣdar but it used in the sense of the Ism Fā'il (active participle) Mu'akkid meaning that which corroborates or emphasises.

59 The substitute word follows the word for which it is substituted in all the latter's cases of I'rāb.

60 It is also called Badal al-Kull min al-Kull (Substitute of the whole for the whole) or Badal Muṭābiq (Concordant/congruous Badal)

61 Two other types are normally added so as to make the total number six. These two are: Badal al-Nisyān (Badal due to forgetfulness) e.g. جاء محمدٌ زيدٌ [Muhammad (or rather) Zayd came] and Badal al-Iḍrāb (Badal of opting for the better alternative) e.g. إرْكَبَ الحِمَارَ الفَرَسَ [Ride a donkey (even better) a horse].

62 This statement is supposed to read: You wanted to say: الفرس but then you erred (by saying: زيداً) so you substituted الفرس for it (i.e. زيداً).

63 Of these fifteen Manṣūbāt the Tamyīz, Mustathnā and Maf'ūl min ajlihī in particular, are not always Manṣūb in which case their names are only significant for the respective meanings that they convey and not as referring to particular places of Naṣb. As regards their I'rāb they will now be counted amongst the Marfū'āt or Makhfūdāt.

64 The author states here that the Manṣūbāt are fifteen in number but then only mentions fourteen.

65 The Nūn that is between the Fi'īl and the Yā' al-Mutakallim is called the Nūn al-Wiqāyah (the Nūn of Guarding) because it guards the Fi'īl from taking the Kasrah that the Yā' al-Mutakallim forces on the letter before it by taking the Kasrah itself.

66 Here the actual Ḍamīr is the Kāf only. The Mīm is called the Ḥarf al-'Imād (particle of support) since it serves as a prop or support for the Alif following it. The Alif itself is a Ḥarf denoting duality.

67 Here as with the previous one, the actual Ḍamīr is only the Kāf as for the Mīm it is called the 'Alāmah Jam' al-Ḍukūr (sign of masculine plural).

68 The actual Ḍamīr is the Kāf only as for the Nūn Mushaddadah (emphatic/doubled Nūn) it is called the 'Alāmah Jam' al-Niswah/al-Ināṭ (sign of feminine plural).

69 The Ḍamīr proper according to the more correct view amongst the Arabic Grammarians is the first part viz. "إِنَّا" where as the rest constitutes number, gender and person markers. However, for the purpose of simplicity we have decided to regard the whole expression as the Ḍamīr.

70 The more correct term for this type of Manṣūb is Maf'ūl Muṭlaq (Absolute Object) i.e. the Maf'ūl proper since it signifies what is actually done free from any reference to being done to something (biḥī), in something (fiḥī), out of or for the purpose of something (min-ajlihī) or with or in the company of something (ma'ahū). Therefore, Maf'ūl, here means "what is done" and Muṭlaq means "free from the aforementioned references or stipulations". This is clearly illustrated by means of the following example which contains all five types of Maf'ūl: قَرَأَ مُحَمَّدٌ وَسَمِيرًا الْكِتَابَ الْيَوْمَ أَمَامَ الْمَدْرَسِ قِرَاءَةً جَيِّدَةً رَغْبَةً فِي التَّقَدُّمِ

[Muhammad read with Samir (or in his company) the book today in front of the teacher well (lit. a good reading) out of a desire for progress]. Here, what was actually done is the act of قِرَاءَةً (reading) – being done to الكتاب (the book), with or in the company of سَمِيرًا (Samir), in the time of الْيَوْمَ (today) and the place of أَمَامَ (in front), out of or for the purpose of رَغْبَةً (desire).

71 These two forms of the Maṣdar constitute one of the three functions of the Maf'ūl Muṭlaq, namely: li-Taukid (for the purpose of emphasis or corroboration). The other two functions are: li Bayān an-Nau' (for the purpose of clarifying the type) e.g. ضرب زيد عمرًا

ضرباً شديداً (Zayd hit ‘Amr a severe hitting i.e. he hit him severely) and li-Bayān al-‘Adad

(for the purpose of clarifying the number) e.g. ضرب زيد عمراً ضربياً (Zayd hit ‘Amr one hitting i.e. he hit him once).

72 It is for this reason that it is also called Maf‘ūl fihī (what the action is done in as regards time or place). Even the word Zarf has connotations of “in-ness” because it means container or vessel as if time and place are containers or vessels of the act that is being done since every act has to be done in a time or a place (with exception of Allah’s Acts).

73 When someone does an action or does it to someone or something then each of these exists in a particular state or condition at the time the action is done. Thus, if Zayd, for example, goes to school, then he can do so walking, running, riding, feeling happy or sad, etc. These are possible states/conditions in which Zayd can be at the time he goes to school. However, we would not know which state or states Zayd is in unless the speaker specifies it. The Hāl is what the speaker uses to specify or clarify the particular state or states Zayd is in when he goes to school.

74 In the first of the three examples the Hāl proceeds from the Fā‘il زيد , in the second it proceeds from the Maf‘ūl bihī الفرس and in the third example it proceeds from either the Fā‘il زيد or the Maf‘ūl bihī عبدالله .

75 In other words, the Hāl is a Faḍlah (dispensable component of the sentence) since what completes Kalām constitutes the ‘Umdahs (indispensable components of the sentence). This means that one can only determine an Ism to be Hal after one has already determined the indispensable components comprising the sentences such that the Hal normally occurs after a nominal or verbal sentence is complete.

76 The Hāl, Na‘t and Khabar have the following in common: They often occur as a Waṣf or Mushtaqq (i.e. Ism Fā‘il, Ism Maf‘ūl, Ṣifah Mushabbahah and Ism Tafḍīl) in which case there ought to be agreement between them and the Ṣāhib al-Hāl, Man‘ūt and Mubtada’ respectively, in terms of gender and number.

77 The term Tamyīz here even though it is Maṣdar it is used in the sense of the Ism Fā‘il (active participle) i.e. Mumayyiz (specifier).

78 The Tamyīz itself comprises two broad categories: Tamyīz al-Mufrad and Tamyīz al-Nisbah/al-Jumlah. Tamyīz al-Mufrad consists of four types:

Tamyīz al-‘Adad e.g. حضر عشرون طالباً (Twenty students were present/attended)

Tamyīz al-Wazn e.g. معي رطلٌ زيتاً (With me is a ratl of oil)

Tamyīz al-Kayl e.g. اشتريتُ صاعاً تمرأ (I bought a sā‘ of dates)

Tamyīz al-Misāḥah e.g. عندي قصبةٌ أرضاً (I have a patch of land)

As for Tamyīz al-Nisbah/al-Jumlah it is that which clarifies the ambiguity in the relation of the action. Thus, in the example: حَسَنٌ زيدٌ (Zayd is good in character) it is not clear what of Zayd is good or whether he is good as a whole. By adding تُحَلَّقُ so that the sentence becomes حَسَنٌ زيدٌ تُحَلَّقاً (Zayd is good in character) it becomes clear that it is Zayd’s character that is good.

79 The term Istithnā’ here could either be used in the original sense of the Maṣdar meaning ‘exception’ or ‘exclusion’ or in the sense of the Ism Maf‘ūl (passive participle) meaning the Mustathnā (i.e. the object excepted/excluded)

80 Obviously, not all of these eight words are Hurūf, since غير، سوى، سوى، سواء are Asmā’, خلا، عدا، حاشا can be Hurūf or Af‘āl. As for إلا it is only used as a Harf.

However, the reason for the author calling them all Hurūf is to show the dominance of إلا which is a Ḥarf over the rest.

81 The Mustathnā minhu is the Ism in the form of a class or genus from which the exception or exclusion is made like الناس and القوم in the examples that are cited.

82 In fact, there are five ways in which to say this statement:

رجل is Mabniyy and امرأة is Mabniyy: لا رجل في الدار ولا امرأة

رجل is Mabniyy and امرأة is Manṣūb: لا رجل في الدار ولا امرأة

رجل is Mabniyy and امرأة is Marfu': لا رجل في الدار ولا امرأة

رجل is Marfu' and امرأة is Marfu': لا رجل في الدار ولا امرأة

رجل is Marfu' and امرأة is Mabniyy: لا رجل في الدار ولا امرأة

83 The Ism زيد (Zayd) is an example of a Mufrad 'Alam and the Ism رجل (man) is an example of a Nakirah Maqṣūdah.

84 Examples of these three are:

يا رجلاً، خذ بيدي [O man, take my hand (like when a blind man requests any man in front of him)]

يا رسول الله (O Messenger of Allah)

يا رؤوفاً بالعباد (O Thou who art compassionate with the servants)

85 In order for an Ism to be Manṣūb as the Maf'ul min ajlihī the following conditions have to be satisfied:

it has to be a Maṣdar

it has to be a Maṣdar Qalbiyy (i.e. a mental or emotional act)

the Maṣdar Qalbiyy has to proceed from the same person performing the action

the Maṣdar Qalbiyy has to exist at the same time of the action being performed

86 The author, even though he mentions the Tābi' of something that is Makhfūḍ as a third category of the Makhfūḍāt al-Asmā', he does not actually discuss it in this section as he does with the two other categories. The reason for this is that the author already dealt with the Tābi' in general in the chapter on the Marfū'āt al-Asmā' such that it is not necessary to repeat it here.

87 (From you and from Nuh)

88 (To Allah is your return – all of you) (To Him you will return)

89 (Allah is pleased with the believers) (Allah is pleased with them and they are pleased with Him)

90 [On it (the cattle) and the ships you are carried]

91 (And in the heavens is your sustenance) [And in it (Paradise) is that which the souls desire]

92 (Seldom I meet a pious man)

93 (Say: We believe in Allah) (Those are the one who believe in Him)

94 (Nothing is like unto Him)

95 (To Allah belong what is in the heavens and what is on earth) (For them therein is an Abode of Eternity)

96 (By Allah)

97 (By Allah)

98 (By Allah)

99 (Perhaps a night like the swell of the ocean lowering its drapes)

100 (I have not seen him since Friday) (I have not seen him today)

101 (I have not seen him since Friday) (I have not seen him today)

102 The more popular view is that Idāfah is of three types with the addition of that which is implied by means of في e.g. قيام الليل (Standing up in the night) or صلاة الصبح (praying in the early morning).
